Council to Take Action Against Fluoridation

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

The Common Council will petition Gov. Hugh Carey to rescind his proposal to mandate the fluoridation of the city's water supply, when it meets in regular session on Tuesday night, the Freeman learned today.

The resolution will come out of the Laws and Rules Committee and will be co-sponsored by Laws and Rules Chairman Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward) and Majority Leader Peter J. Mancuso (D-12th Ward).

Both legislative leaders are opposed to the Carey mandate — announced in last week's Sunday Freeman — for primarily the same reasons: "freedom of choice."

"It would be unconstitutional to force people to drink water they don't want to drink," Quick said. "They can't shove it down our throats."

"Why do they have to force this on one of the best water supply systems in the state?" Mancuso said. "The people don't want it. It's as simple as that."

Both Quick and Mancuso voted against fluoridation of the city's water supply system when it came to a Common Council vote in 1971.

Quick said copies of the petition would be sent to not only the governor, but to the city's representatives in the state legislature, Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-Saugerties) and Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn (R-Cornwall on Hudson). There is no doubt on the petition's passage in the Council: seven of the aldermen who voted against fluoridation are still in the Council and one of the new members, Philip DeCicco (D-Ninth Ward) told the Freeman he would also vote for a petition against mandated fluoridation.

Quick indicated the petition being offered to the Council would deal only with the "freedom of choice" issue.

"I know some people claim it's a communist plot and all that," Quick said, "but as far as I'm concerned that just smokes the issue when you get into all that Bircher talk."

Mancuso didn't disagree with Quick's political assessment but suggested, "it's like a communist plot in the sense that it agitates people and gets them all stirred up. It makes them think their rights are being taken away from them."

Neither man intends to include pros and cons as to the health (dental or otherwise) factors involved in fluoridation. Both suggest there are other alternatives, however, which they contend makes their "freedom of choice" position more germane.

Schermerhorn, who is in the unique position of representing both test cities in the "fluoridation experiment" of 20 years ago, Newburgh and Kingston, is opposed to the Carey mandate for different reasons than the majority of the city's aldermen.

"I'm not going to go for a mandate," Schermerhorn told the Freeman. "First of all, the state's not going to pick up the cost. This is not the time to mandate expensive programs on communities without paying for them. It's poor timing. We can't afford it."

Schermerhorn said he is not opposed to fluoridation of water systems, however.

Hinchey said he's never been confronted by the issue before and said he wanted to poll his constituents and study it before taking a position.

The cost, as estimated by officials from the city water department would work out to about $40,000 for equipment and a similar amount for maintenance and personnel yearly.

The Carey bill, one of several under the general heading of "preventative medicine" as recommended by his Task Force on Health Needs, would mandate fluoridation of the public water systems serving some 5.5 million persons, most of them on Long Island. The mandate, if approved by the legislature, would not go into effect until September of next year.

Ford's Tax Bill Choices . . .

To Veto or to Sign Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford believes Congress' $24.8 billion tax cut bill contains "some good things and some very bad things." He will take several days deciding whether to sign or veto it, according to his spokesman.

Ford called his economic and energy advisers to a Good Friday meeting at the White House. He met with several of them Thursday to go over the dozens of provisions of the tax bill.

Ford has until April 8 to decide whether to let the bill become law. If he consents, the government will begin in May sending rebate checks of $100 to $200 on 1974 income taxes to most Americans. It would also begin in May withholding less money for 1975 taxes.

That is a powerful political incentive for Ford to sign the bill, despite his objections to many of its provisions.

The President told his experts Thursday: "This is a tough call." He asked them to draw up their recommendations.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen told newsmen Ford considered the bill a mixture of good and bad things, and Nessen and other officials elaborated some of these:

—Ford had wanted only a $16 billion tax cut to spur the economy. Congress gave him that and a little more. Its version is a net increase in taxation of $22.8 billion since it contains, along with the cuts, $2 billion in tax increases for oil companies.

Tax rebate legislation displeases Rep. Fish.

—Ford opposes amendments in the bill which he fears will contribute to pushing the federal deficit over $100 billion. The bill's one-time $50 payment to Social Security recipients will cost $1.7 billion, a White House spokesman said, and payments to the working poor — which he called "really a welfare proposal" — would cost $1.5 billion.

—Ford wanted only a tax cut. He thinks Congress should not have used the bill as a vehicle to partially repeal the oil industry's 60-year-old tax concession, the oil depletion allowance. But a spokesman said Ford doesn't see this as a major problem.

Nessen said Ford will take "several days" to consider the measure. He said that as of noon Thursday, the White House still had only one copy of the bill, the original sent from Congress Wednesday night, containing hundreds of scratchings out, insertions and scrawls in the margins.

Holding this inch-thick document by two fingers, Nessen told reporters: "This is not a joke.

The President needs to have time to get a copy of the bill that he can read."

"The President believes he could sustain a veto in the House if he decided to veto," Nessen said. The final House vote of 287-125 was three short of the two-thirds needed to override a veto. An earlier, key test vote was 60 short of override strength. The Senate vote was 45-16.

Ford is getting conflicting advice as to whether to veto. Assistant House Democratic Leader John McFall of California, who transmitted the bill to Ford under his signature, said: "Our problems do not permit delay or study. The bill needs to be signed into law promptly."

"This is not the time to listen to big business opposition or to the advice of economic advisers who have been proven wrong time and again. It is time to listen to the people."

House GOP leader John Rhodes of Arizona told reporters after meeting with Ford Thursday: "He is certainly considering very seriously about vetoing this bill ... It's my opinion that there will be a veto and I think there should be a veto."

Rep. John Anderson of Illinois, third-ranking in the House Republican leadership, said he advised Ford to sign the measure "but my advice was in the minority of the Republican leadership who met with the President."

Hughes, Jimmy 'The Greek' Named

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)

— Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder is better known for his oddsmaking on everything from horseracing to political elections. Today he is in the middle of a government suit involving reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes — a "witch hunt," he says.

The suit charges Hughes, Snyder and six others with defrauding stockholders out of $49 million during the purchase of Air West, Inc.

Snyder was one of those named in the Security & Exchange Commission action. He said he did nothing illegal while serving as a public relations man for Hughes when the regional airline was bought by the billionaire in 1968.

"I think this is a witch hunt and some of the SEC attorneys are trying to get publicity," said Snyder. He added he made no money from the carrier's acquisition.

The SEC charged in the civil suit Thursday that Hughes and the other defendants, including Las Vegas Sun publisher H.M. "Hank" Greenspun, used false and misleading publicity and manipulated Air West stock to drive the price down before the Hughes purchase.

Greenspun, known for exposes of local corruption, denied any wrongdoing.

"I am probably the first alleged conspirator in the entire history of conspiracies who had no knowledge of whom I was allegedly conspiring with or for what purpose of how to perpetuate a plot of which I knew absolutely nothing," said Greenspun.

Three Hughes firms also were named in the SEC suit filed in U.S. District Court — Summa Corp., Hughes Air Corp. and Hughes AirWest.

Other individuals named were David Charnay, a Hollywood movie producer; George Crockett, former owner of an airport near Las Vegas which he sold to Hughes; Chester Davis, Hughes' New York attorney and a major Nevada gambling licensee; Patrick Hillings, former southern California congressman; and Robert Maheu, Hughes' chief aide until he was ousted in 1970.

The damage figure used in the suit was $15 million. However, the action calls on the defendants to make good stock value losses which could total $49 million.

Air West now is known as Hughes AirWest and is based in San Francisco. Summa is the successor to the Hughes Tool Co., and Hughes Air Corp. is the parent firm of Hughes AirWest.

The SEC suit asked the defendants be ordered to return any profits they made from the alleged illegal activity and be forbidden from any further illegal activity. The SEC has no criminal prosecution authority.

According to the complaint, Hughes and the others falsely represented to shareholders of Air West that they would receive $22 per share if the Hughes offer were accepted. Actually, the SEC charged, they knew shareholders would receive far less. The purchase price was $8.75 a share, the SEC said.

The Hunt for Susan Saxe Is Over

BOSTON (UPI) — The arrest of Susan Saxe, the honor student-turned-militant who led authorities on a chase through communes and college campuses, has partially ended a case that frustrated the FBI for more than four years.

Miss Saxe, 26, of Albany, N.Y., one of the FBI's 10 most wanted outlaws, was captured Thursday by an alert police officer in Philadelphia as she walked along a downtown street.

She and fugitive Katherine Ann Power, of Denver, Colo., had reportedly been constant companions since the 1970 death of a Boston policeman they are accused of murdering during a bank holdup. The two women were on the FBI's most wanted list longer than any women in history. Miss Power is still at large.

FBI agents had declined to discuss the status of the investigation, but privately officials didn't hide their desire to solve the case. Many officials had expressed surprise over the FBI's inability to find the two women, who were reported living openly as lesbians avoiding authorities by blending into a counter-culture lifestyle.

"It was a difficult investigation because the suspects went underground," an FBI spokesman in Boston said following Thursday's arrest. "This was a continual and intensive investigation for more than four years."

"This has been a frustrating case," Misses Saxe and Power, students at Brandeis University at the time of the Boston holdup and murder, were the last of four young women to make the FBI's list during 1970, when violence among college radicals gave authorities a new type of criminal to deal with.

The other two were Angela Davis, who was caught within two months and acquitted, and Bernadine Rae Dohrn, a militant leader who eluded the FBI for more than three years before capture.

Misses Saxe and Power, who used to be model college students with numerous scholastic and civic awards, joined three ex-convicts they met through the antiwar movement to form an urban guerilla unit, police say.

The three men were captured and sent to prison for bank robbery and murder.

Police said the two women moved frequently, changed identities often and confided only in each other.

The search was stepped up in January when the FBI confirmed reports the two had lived in Lexington, Ky., on the edge of the University of Kentucky campus.

Persons in both places were sent to jail for refusing to tell the FBI what they knew about the two women. Finally, however, one agreed to testify.

The FBI spokesman refused to say whether that testimony had been instrumental in catching Miss Saxe.

Brrrr, It Was Cold Out

KINGSTON

Back-to-back record low temperatures were set in Kingston Thursday and today, laying to rest—at least for this year—that old adage that March comes in like a lion and goes out like a lamb.

According to figures compiled at the City Engineer's Office, the thermometer plunged to a record low of 14 degrees at 4:30 a.m. Thursday, erasing the old March 27 standard of 20 degrees set in 1966.

As if that wasn't enough, the mercury again dipped to 14 degrees at 5:30 a.m. today. The previous record low for March 28 was 16 degrees, set last year.

The forecast for the weekend doesn't indicate much improvement, and there is every possibility that the Easter Bunny will contract a case of cold feet from all that hippety-hopping about.

Freezing rain is expected Saturday, and continued cold weather and precipitation is in the cards for Easter Sunday. Scarves and woolen caps might sensibly replace colorful bonnets if the predictions hold true.

The two consecutive days of sub-freezing weather, in the meantime, have chilled crocuses and Easter lilies to their roots, and temporarily put on ice hopes for an early and lasting Spring thaw.

$10.5 Million From Expenditure Budget Earmarked for Ulster

By HUGH REYNOLDS

SAUGERTIES
Ulster County will be receiving more than $10.5 million from the State Capital Expenditure Budget—Albany's version of the federal pork barrel—but the incumbent says he doesn't want to take credit for it, even though it's about $4 million more than the 101st District received last year.

"Unlike previous representatives I want to make it clear that I'm not taking credit for this money coming into Ulster County," said Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, a Saugerties Democrat serving his first term in the state's lower house.

"The fact is that these state facilities are located here in Ulster County (almost $7.1 million of the money will go to two state prisons in Ulster located in Wallkill and Napanoch) and that they have to be funded in any case."

"I'm very pleased, of course, that these capital construction projects will take place and that this revenue will come into the county and provide jobs for our people," Hinchey said but then reiterated, "I want to again make it clear that I'm not taking credit for it."

But doesn't a certain amount of "credit" accrue in the public mind to the announcer of "good news" such as capital funding? Hinchey was asked. "Of course it does," he said. "But I'm not going to try to fool people into believing it's the assemblyman who brings all this money into the county. It's simply not true."

As noted, most of the money, about 70 percent is allocated for the state's two prisons in Ulster County, the Eastern Correctional Institution at Napanoch ($4,850,740 for numerous construction projects) and Wallkill State Prison ($2,157,306 for similar work) with the rest earmarked for improvements to other existing state facilities along with a number of sewage treatment projects. The capital construction budget did not include roadwork—Kingston is interested in funding for the proposed North-South Arterial—however that funding is expected to be detailed in the governor's supplemental budget next month.

The capital construction budget (approved by the Legislature on Wednesday) is divided into two sections, new appropriations ($4,675,000, with $3,590,000 for Napanoch covering most of it) and reappropriations ($5,915,000), money appropriated in previous budgets but not spent and which must be "reappropriated" in order to be available for the coming fiscal year, April 1-March 31.

The $3,590,000 for Napanoch will pay for infirmary and inmate housing expansion and installation of safety equipment.

The $740,000 for Wallkill will pay for a new heating plant and replacement of roofs.

A total of $150,000 is allocated to the Senate House in Kingston for restoration and development of buildings and site work.

A water quality improvement project in the village of Saugerties is funded for $103,000 while the State University College at New Paltz will receive $67,000 for campus roadwork construction. The Department of Environmental Conservation's field office in New Paltz gets $25,000 for capital improvements.

Under reappropriations the bulk of the money, $3.8 million goes to the county's two prisons ($1,527,306 for Wallkill and $1,260,740 for Napanoch) but there are significant expenditures in other areas as well.

The State University College at New Paltz will receive $786,966 for various construction projects including the airconditioning of McKenna Theater.

Construction of sewer districts in Lloyd, Saugerties and Wallkill is funded at $668,000.

The Barclay Heights water quality improvement project will get $376,000.

The Senate House and Museum complex shows two grants for a total of $410,000 for improvement of its facilities and acquisition of property.

Wilson State Park will receive a $350,000 reappropriation for continuing development of its "day use facilities" such as picnic areas, swimming and athletic fields.

The State Armory on Manor Avenue will receive $95,000 for a new fire alarm system and improvement of its electrical system.

The budget lists a total of $97,500 for a "Wassaic Development Center" in Ulster County, planned for the Saugerties area.

Hostage Killed In Newburgh Battle

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) — One hostage was killed and another escaped Thursday night before police could break into a Newburgh apartment occupied for more than three hours by a gunman, police said.

Robert Sanders of Newburgh was killed, according to reports, in cross fire between police and the gunman barricaded in the third floor apartment of a multi-family building.

Sanders wife escaped under cover of tear gas shot into the room, officials said.

Jerome Banks, 47, of Newburgh was captured after police sent a trained dog into the building.

Banks was treated at St. Luke's Hospital for Mace burns and dog bites and then released to police custody.

For more than three hours police from Newburgh and two surrounding towns surrounded the building. Street and house lights were blacked out and four blocks in the city's north end was sealed. Witness said more than 50 shots were fired by police.

Blizzard Hits The Midlands

By United Press International

A Good Friday blizzard—one of the worst snowstorms in more than two decades—pummelled a 1,000-mile swath of the north today, piling up 10-foot snowdrifts, stranding or delaying thousands of motorists and isolating entire communities.

At least four deaths were blamed on the blizzard, which began its assault Thursday and became the third major snowstorm this week in the upper Midwest.

"It's one hell of a mess," a police dispatcher at snowswept Gering, Neb., said. "Nobody's going anywhere."

National guardsmen and rescue crews took to snowmobiles and four-wheel-drive vehicles in efforts to rescue hundreds of persons stranded in their cars in Nebraska's western panhandle.

One man died of a heart attack while two snowplows leading a rescue team to his snowbound farm home near Bayard, Neb., got stuck in the snow. A truck driver was killed on a two-truck collision on a snow-slicked highway near Baldwin, Wis.

A 24-year-old Hubbard, Iowa, school teacher, on her way home after the storm forced early dismissal of classes, was killed when her car slammed into a truck on icy U.S. 65 near Hubbard, Iowa.

In Ridgely, Ill., where the storm spawned light snow, sleet and freezing rain, a motorist was killed when his car skidded off an icy roadway and slammed into a bridge.

All South Dakota state roads were closed, as were all roads leading out of Cheyenne, Wyo. State offices closed in the Dakotas and Wyoming.

Minnesota state police warned against travel in most of the state. Most bus runs were stopped and many Minnesota airports shut down. Marshall, Minn.,—a city of about 10,000 persons—was isolated, with power knocked out and all business closed.

Agriculture officials in Nebraska and Wyoming feared heavy livestock losses.

Nebraska Gov. J. J. Exon issued a disaster declaration as a foot of snow and 60-mile-an-hour winds buried portions of his state under 10-foot snowdrifts.

Blizzard warnings were up in the Dakotas, Wyoming, Kansas and Minnesota, and weather and travel warnings were up for 18 states from California to Michigan.

Nearly three feet of snow clogged South Dakota's Black Hills. The storm brought the two-day snowfall total to 56 inches at Wolf Creek pass, high in the southern Colorado Rockies.

Operators of western Nebraska truck stops reported "wall to wall people" and communities along drift-clogged highways were packed with blizzard refugees.

Gordon, Neb., Police Chief Bob Case collapsed from exhaustion after trudging less than a mile through the raging snowstorm.

He and two other persons were attempting to reach the Terry Johnson home, where Johnson's wife, Dianne, was three days overdue with her pregnancy. The would-be rescuers were stranded when two snowplows attempting to lead the rescue party got stuck. The rescue party found refuge at another farmhouse, where Case collapsed.

The Johnsons, still stranded, were awaiting the birth of their child today.

"I don't know the first thing about delivering a baby, but if it comes, I'll learn quick," Johnson said.

Tax Saving Device For Oil Industry

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The oil industry legally avoided $50 million in taxes by speeding up petroleum imports to beat President Ford's $1 per barrel tariff, government data show.

The tax savings came to light Wednesday. The Commerce Department reported an unexpected record $917 million U.S. surplus in international trade in February because of the deepest reduction in oil imports since the Arab embargo. There was a $210.5 million trade deficit in January.

The oil industry created a $1.5 billion swing in the balance of trade by slashing petroleum imports from $3.3 billion in January to $1.8 billion in February.

The trade improvement resulted from a 45 percent plunge in oil volume, although there was no major shift from traditional consumer demand for heating fuel, gasoline and other petroleum products in February.

But Ford's $1 per barrel oil tariff took effect Feb. 1.

In anticipation of the tax, oil deliveries were speeded up. Oil imports totaled 185 million barrels in November, then jumped to 207 million barrels in December and soared to a record 286 million barrels in January.

Imports plunged to 156 million barrels in February, 9 million barrels less than February 1974 during the height of the Arab embargo and about 50 million barrels less than might be expected.

"It was the dollar tax that did it," said a spokesman for the Federal Energy Administration. "Stuff that normally would have been brought in the first week in February was rushed through in January. Instead of waiting in the port to unload, then process the papers, they processed the papers, then unloaded."

A Commerce Department spokesman said oil shippers were rushing into Customs offices in the waning weeks of January to beat the Feb. 1 deadline. But the spokesman said the recession was a contributing factor.

World's Roman Catholics Observing Good Friday

Pope Paul VI led the world's 600 million Roman Catholics today in solemn Good Friday observances recalling Christ's crucifixion 19 centuries ago.

In Jerusalem, thousands of Christian pilgrims from many denominations crowded the narrow, cobbled streets of the ancient walled city for processions along the Via Dolorosa—traditional path of Christ's march to his crucifixion.

The 77-year-old pontiff was scheduled to attend an evening liturgical service in St. Peter's Basilica and then carry a tall cross in a procession around Rome's Colosseum to re-enact the stages of Jesus' crucifixion.

Thursday aides supported the Pope, who suffers from arthritis, as he descended from the altar in St. Peter's Basilica to wash and kiss the feet of 12 boys in re-enactment of Christ's gesture to the Apostles at the Last Supper.

The Vatican switched the Holy Thursday mass from the Basilica of St. John the Lateran to St. Peter's so more pilgrims could see it, but the world's largest church—which can hold 30,000 people—was only half full.

The Jerusalem pilgrims, many of them carrying large wooden crosses, followed the route of Christ on his way to Calvary, stopping at the 14 stations where He rested.

A First: Passover at Benedictine

Jewish guests at Benedictine Senior Residence were able to celebrate Passover with a seder this week through the cooperation of Fannie Gallop and Sister Mary Charles. Mrs. Gallop, a Benedictine resident, prepared the ritual repast. "Some people think that you have to be among your own religion to be able to keep yours," Mrs. Gallop said, adding, "We have all religions here and everyone is able to keep his own religion." Fourth Suicide Attempt POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (UPI) — State authorities are investigating conditions at the Dutchess County Jail, where an inmate Thursday tried to take his own life, the fourth such attempt at the facility in about one week.

The latest reported suicide attempt came one day after the jail was the scene of a disturbance involving about two dozen prisoners allegedly protesting conditions at the jail.

Two state investigators were at the facility Thursday when Arthur North of nearby Staatsburg attempted to hang himself in his cell, officials said. North was awaiting sentencing on charges of robbery and assault. Another inmate reportedly talked him out of it, they said.

There have been four suicide attempts since last week at the facility, two of them successful.

The state is in the process of investigating the jail to determine whether or not it should be closed. On Wednesday night, the county legislature delayed consideration of a proposal for $2.3 million in improvements to the troubled facility.

The legislature said it will take up consideration of the measure again early next month.

Officials said 23 inmates Wednesday let themselves out of their cells after a guard was overpowered and his keys taken. The guard was taken hostage but was quickly released, authorities said. No injuries were reported.

Authorities said the group smashed sinks and toilets, causing considerable damage in cells and flooding the jail's first floor.

Hostesses Sue L.A.

'We Only Answered a Help Wanted Ad'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two women, arrested as prostitutes for answering a newspaper help wanted ad for "sexy hostesses" planted by police, sued the city for $1 million in federal court Thursday, charging civil rights violations.

They were among 53 women arrested at a "party" staged by vice squad officers in a hotel. Charges against all the women were dropped by the city attorney, who refused to prosecute the case.

ACLU Attorney Jill Jakes, filing suit on behalf of Sandra Birdsong and Geraldine Washington, licensed masseuses, said the police scheme was "so outrageous and fundamentally unfair as to shock the universal sense of justice."

Vice squad officers, operating through a false front corporation, "Jules Feinberg Enterprises," advertised in the Los Angeles Free Press for "sexy hostesses" for expense-paid gambling junkets.

Women answering the ad were told the job entailed accompanying gamblers to Las Vegas, and a screened group of women was invited to a party at a fancy hotel, where, they were told, they would be introduced to "high rollers" looking for partners.

The women, some of whom said they were schoolteachers or housewives hoping to pick up spending money and free travel, said they were told they were free to make whatever arrangements with the "gamblers" they wished, but that prostitution was not mentioned.

Police said the women were arrested when they agreed, at the party, to perform sex for money, but some of the women said they never committed themselves to anything but a trip to Las Vegas.

City Attorney Burt Pines dropped charges against the women, saying he had "never seen a case with this kind of background." He said the officers responsible were not legally guilty of entrapment, "but it would be extremely difficult to convince a jury of that."

The suit named as defendants the head of the police vice division, Capt. Jack Wilson, 24 officers, the hotel and two of its executives for allowing the "party" to be held there, asking $50,000 in actual damages for false arrest and $1 million in punitive damages.

Revised C-H Rates Effective Tuesday

POUGHKEEPSIE
Reduced rates for residential electric heating customers—as well as an electric surcharge for everyone else—will become effective Tuesday, according to Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp.

The revised rates, ordered by the Public Service Commission (PSC) on Feb. 5, will result in lower utility bills for customers who have electric home heating systems. The lower prices will be matched by higher rates for all other customers.

The revised rates provide for a discount of .0052 cents per kilowatt hour for usage in excess of 1,000 kilowatt hours per month during eight heating months. The discount will apply only to those homeowners who took electric service on or before Feb. 5; those that began service with Central Hudson after Feb. 5 will not be eligible for the discount, but will be required to pay the surcharge.

The surcharge amounts to .000232 cents per kilowatt hour to be applied for a period of one year.

As an example (provided by Central Hudson), if a residential customer uses 300 kilowatt hours in one month, the cost of electricity will be increased by about seven cents for that month, or about 84 cents for the year.

A residential customer who uses 500 kilowatt hours per month will pay a surcharge of about 12 cents per month, or about $1.44 for a 12-month period.

The discount available to residential electric heating customers will be somewhat more substantial. If a residential customer uses 2,000 kilowatt hours in one month, the cost of service will be reduced by 5.20 for that month. The use of 3,000 kilowatt hours during one month will result in $10.40 deduction for that month; 5,000 kilowatt hours will cause a $20.80 reduction.

Because the surcharge is directly proportional to the amount of electric energy used, the effect on commercial and industrial customers will be much greater than on residential customers. The discount applies only to residential customers, however.

Central Hudson challenged the PSC order and requested the commission to conduct a rehearing and reconsider its decision. The utility contended that the order violated the Public Service Law and that the revised rates would be discriminatory.

Central Hudson's request, however, was denied by the commission.

Exempt Bill

KINGSTON
"Why exempt eyeglasses and not canes and wheelchairs from sales tax?" asks State Sen. Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.)

Teaming up with Assemblywoman Jean Amato (D-98th Dist.) Mason is co-sponsoring a bill which would exempt from sales tax orthopedic appliances such as braces, canes, crutches, walkers and wheel chairs. Also exempted would be supplies for diabetics such as syringes, needles and testing materials.

Mason said "there is no logical reason to perpetuate the distinction in the sales tax law in exempting hearing aids, but not wheelchairs or eyeglasses, but not canes and the articles needed by those afflicted with diabetes. That doesn't make sense. We've got to make every effort to help the disabled and the handicapped."

He said that Section 1115 of the tax law includes "prosthetic aids, hearing aids, or eyeglasses and artificial devices for the use of a particular individual to correct or alleviate physical incapacity." The proposed amendment would add orthopedic appliances and supplies for diabetics to this list for sales tax exemption.

"There might be a small loss of revenue by the state," Mason pointed out. "But there's still a tremendous amount of fat and needless spending in the governor's budget, — non-essential programs that could be cut out entirely to make up the difference. An example is the $36 million the Governor wants for the Council on the Arts and there's a lot more of the same."

"Some of our state bureaucrats don't have much sense," Mason concluded. "They would save the ballet dancers, creators of modern art, and the poets while taxing the sick, the needy, and the handicapped for their crutches and wheelchairs. It's crazy, but that's the way things are run in Albany."

Junior Drivers

KINGSTON
County Clerk Albert Spada has announced new regulations for junior drivers' licenses, effective April 1.

A junior operator may drive after hours if he carries a letter of employment specifying a time for traveling to and from work. Spada stated that the Motor Vehicle Department, located in the Ulster County Office Building, has samples of the type of letter which must be carried by the Class six operator.

The new regulation will help high school students to take advantage of a greater variety of job opportunities, he said.

Consistent View

One of the most striking disclosures in the CBS interview with H.R. Haldeman is his conclusion in retrospect that the White House tapes "should have been destroyed" to prevent their becoming evidence against President Nixon and his close associates. This view of the former White House chief of staff is not unexpected. It is consistent with the attitude prevalent among members of Nixon's inner circle in those days of deception and coverup.

Haldeman does not dwell on the moral and legal implications of destroying potential evidence in criminal proceedings; he merely calls it stupid not to have gotten rid of the damning tapes. Mainly he appears to feel regret that he "didn't really think the thing through to the point of realizing . . . the enormous damage that would be done to me and to Richard Nixon."

Now that this damage has been done, Haldeman says he would like to see all the tapes made available; he thinks this would show Nixon as "the great, strong, incisive and devious leader that he was 90 percent of the time." Maybe so — but the record also will show that Nixon's chief White House aide would have destroyed the tapes to save his and Nixon's skin if only he had thought of it.

Handgun Problem

The newly formed House Judiciary subcommittee on crime has just heard further expert testimony on a crucially important aspect of the dispute over handgun controls. The witness noted that these days domestic and neighborhood quarrels often result in homicides because of easy access to handguns. "Where a couple of punches might have been thrown," he said, "you have a murder."

Dr. Stefan A. Pasternack's comment carries unusual weight because he is not only a Georgetown University professor of psychiatry, but also a clinical consultant for prisoners and parolees. His experience in this field gives him special insight into the kind of violent outbreaks that lead to sentences for homicide or attempted homicide.

Pasternack noted the now well-known fact that "relatives of victims or the victims' close personal acquaintances" commit about 70 percent of this nation's killings. Handguns are the predominant weapon. Those who commit such crimes, the prison consultant told the subcommittee, often are "nice guys — People you went to school with — who have lost control of themselves" at a moment when a gun was ready to hand.

Those, including President Ford, who still oppose federal law requiring owners to register their guns should give more thought to this aspect of American violence. Easy access to handguns complicates the homicide problem. As Dr. Pasternack said in his testimony, "We don't live in the Wild West any more, unless we start turning our cities into the Wild West."

Shortage Remains

The humble copper penny continues to be a source of vexation for the United States Mint, not to mention a lot of other people and institutions. Though 70 billion pennies have been minted in the past 16 years, the little coins are still in short supply. The reason appears to be that people are hoarding them — an estimated 30 billion, Mint officials report.

The presumption is that for a time, at least, people were stashing away their pennies in hopes of making a profit on their copper content. This was not a very promising venture at best. By now, with the price of copper down to about 50 cents a pound from a high of nearly $1.50, the idea of making a killing on pennies is nonsense.

The hope is that as this truth strikes home people will begin to put their pennies into circulation again. Doing so makes sense in any case. Doing so right now would be a helpful gesture toward easing a penny shortage which causes annoying problems in banks and retail stores.

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Arthur Sampson, the roly-poly chief of the General Services Administration, likes to travel in style. Unfortunately, the public has to pay for his global wanderings.

As part of our Watch on Waste series, we've inspected the travel vouchers of Sampson and other key federal officials. We've discovered that many of the top bureaucrats do more junketing than the lawmakers.

Sampson's travels in 1974 alone cost the taxpayers a whopping $14,452.53. He made no fewer than 44 trips, including one which took him around the world.

Ignoring a presidential directive which requires that federal officials use "less than first-class accommodations," Sampson invariably flew in the forward cabin.

The directive, however, does permit first-class travel if needed for the "efficient conduct of government business." A spokesman for Sampson insisted the GSA administrator needed the more luxurious seating so he could do better work while traveling.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Some Sampson Travels Hardly Vital

Sampson's odyssey around the world last May cost $2,891.80 just for air fare. The GSA slipped the State Department an extra $154.50 so Sampson could "convert from coach to first class" on the last leg of the trip.

Five architects of the American Architects Institute accompanied the GSA chief to Bangkok, Hong Kong, Tehran and New Delhi, where they sought to "exchange information on design and construction of buildings."

On most of his trips, Sampson takes along one or another of his Washington aides. But his favorite traveling companion, apparently, is Ms. Mary Foster, who went with him on 12 excursions last year.

Like her itinerant boss, Ms. Foster traveled first class. She stuck the taxpayers with $5,613.60 worth of tickets and expenses.

Some of their journeyings, judging from the descriptions on their travel vouchers, were hardly essential. They flew to Chicago last January, for example, simply to attend a "retirement award and ceremony for Regional Administrator."

For the July 4th weekend, Sampson took Ms. Foster to San Francisco to dedicate a building and to "participate in 25th Anniversary GSA activities."

In September, the two voyagers split for the shores of Waikiki. They conducted meetings and reviewed GSA operations in the Aloha state.

Last October, Sampson and Foster attended various official functions in Boston. They then flew off to Rockland, Me., for three days of "personal business," at their own expense.

This year, Sampson is off on a running start to beat his 1974 record. He will be leaving shortly for a two-week "trade mission" to South America and he has accepted a London speaking engagement later in the year. Both trips will be paid for by the public.

FOOTNOTE: A GSA spokesman defended Sampson's travel as an essential part of his job. When asked about a trip Sampson and Foster took to Kissimmee, Fla., last month, the spokesman explained that Sampson made a speech there, then hopped up to Atlanta for a "regional inspection." "Miss Foster accompanies (Sampson) on all regional reviews," the spokesman said.

ONASSIS' LAST INTERVIEW: Among the thousands who ask me each month to investigate their complaints, I never expected to hear from Aristotle Onassis.

He contacted me three months before his death and we had a confidential talk. His associates tell me it was his last talk with a reporter. They have released me, therefore, from any pledge of confidentiality.

In a sense, the story began in the 1950s when I dug out the details of a dubious deal Onassis had made to build three oil tankers for the United States. This led to his indictment and a subsequent $7 million, out-of-court settlement.

He never forgot the impact of the column, his associates say. When he got angry at the shah of Iran over exorbitant fuel charges, Onassis sought me out.

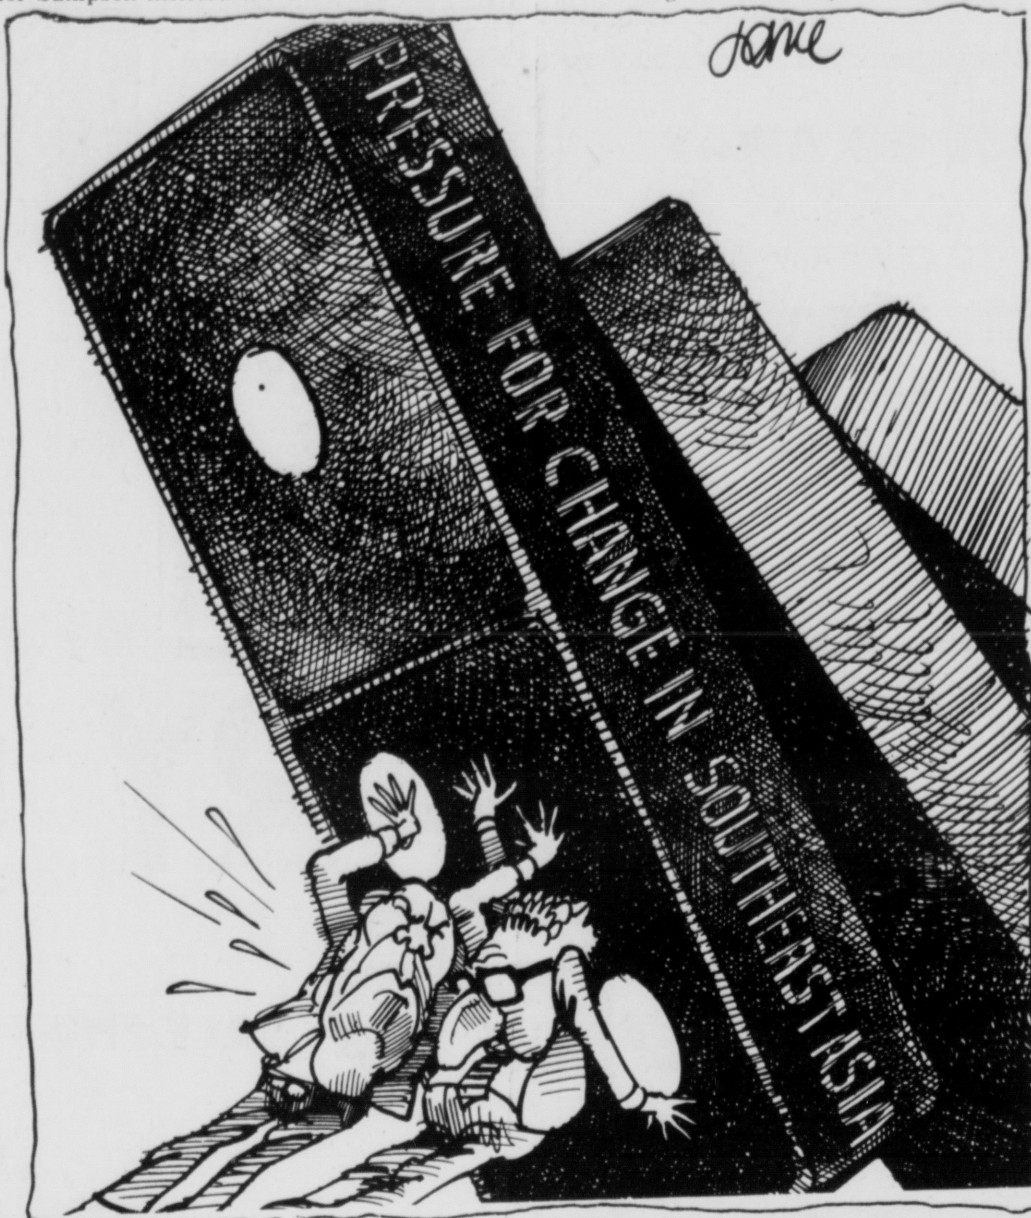

He and his wife, Jacqueline, had been wined and dined in Iran. They had close personal ties with the shah's oil ministers. But like all the shah's customers, Onassis had to pay through the nose for Iranian oil. The fuel pinch finally forced him to give up his airline, Olympic Airways, to the Greek government.

He was so bitter at the shah, say his associates, that he was willing to fly to Washington to meet with me. I agreed instead to join him for lunch on my next New York trip. His limousine met me at the airport and delivered me to the fashionable Cote Basque restaurant where he had a special table.

Onassis ridiculed the shah's claim that he had to quadruple oil prices because he is paying four times more for Western food and arms. Onassis said he had been tempted to write to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, suggesting that the United States offer to give the shah what he needs at no cost whatsoever if Iran would reduce oil prices to the former level.

Because of the sheer volume of Iranian oil sales, said Onassis also expressed suspicion over the Central Intelligence Agency's close ties with the shah.

Just as Onassis was warming up the subject, the shah's U.N. ambassador walked into the restaurant and was seated at a nearby table. Onassis abruptly changed the subject.

Inside Report

Private and Personal Influence

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although some politicians have written him off as a White House power, presidential counselor Robert Hartmann retains enough influence to override President Ford's other senior aides on a step of dubious political and economic wisdom: expanded highway construction to fight the recession.

Hartmann was Mr. Ford's top aide during his nine years as House minority leader, but he has not fitted easily into the more formal, tightly organized world of the Ford White House. Although he is assigned top political responsibility as cabinet-level presidential counselor, administration insiders consider him largely eclipsed by White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld as Mr. Ford's principal political adviser.

But the President's decision to release $2 billion in impounded highway funds, announced Feb. 12 at Topeka, Kans., reveals that disorganized Bob Hartmann still can be tuned closer than super-organized Bob Don Rumsfeld to Mr. Ford's own political mentality.

For weeks prior to Topeka, the President was under intense pressure from "the highwaymen" — builders, construction unions, auto men and, especially, state governors — to release the road money. That coalition, having given highway-building top priority among all public works for the past generation, remains potent.

But "the highwaymen" were running into trouble inside the White House. Their opponents included such top brass as Rumsfeld, Treasury Secretary William Simon and chief economic adviser Alan Greenspan, an opposition that would ordinarily doom any proposal, particularly when buttressed by impressive political and economic arguments.

Politically, it was argued, spending another $2 billion hardly eased Mr. Ford's herculean task of controlling outlays voted by the overwhelmingly Democratic Congress.

Economically, it was argued, the trouble with all public works spending to combat recession, highways included, is the time lag of spending the money. Of the $2 billion released by Mr. Ford, only $50 million will be spent by June 30. Another $1 billion will be spent in the next fiscal year, with the remaining $950 million spent after June 30, 1976, presumably long after the economic upturn when inflation is likely to be the major economic issue.

Finally, there is wide consensus inside the administration that, given the need to conserve energy and the deplorable inattention to mass transit, highway building should now have much lower priority. Using road construction as a primary anti-recession weapon contradicts that consensus.

But Mr. Ford, himself a "highwayman" during 25 years in Congress, was susceptible to arguments of the governors — and Counselor Hartmann.

Hartmann, who deplores government-by-memo-randum, wrote no tightly reasoned argument for highway spending. Nor did he have much to say in meetings, which did not amount to much (with anti-spender Simon absent because of congressional hearings). Rather, Hartmann's influence on the President was exerted privately and personally.

"I got the idea the President's mind was made up before the meetings began," one official told us. If so, a far-from-dead Bob Hartmann was largely responsible.

The left-right split in the Republican party has reduced its thimbleful of governors to haggling over this esoteric question: can the appointed governor of American Samoa vote in the caucus of Republican governors? Or is he a civil servant barred from such political activity by the Hatch Act?

The answer could decide the surprisingly intense struggle over the next chairman of the National Governors' Conference, rotating to the Republicans this year. The 13 elected Republican governors are split between two highly regarded figures in the party, the conservatives backing Gov. James Holshouser of North Carolina and the liberals supporting Gov. Robert Ray of Iowa.

That's where the Samoan question intrudes. Earl Ruth, a conservative defeated for reelection to Congress from North Carolina last year, was recently appointed governor of American Samoa as part of President Ford's hiring program for unemployed Republican politicians. Naturally, he supports fellow Carolinian Holshouser.

But Ray's allies say the Hatch Act prohibits Ruth from voting in the caucus of Republican governors when it decides between Holshouser and Ray during the National Governors' Conference at New Orleans in June. Administration officials contend the Hatch Act is mute on the point.

Hatch Act or not, liberal governors tried to vote Ruth out of the Republican caucus during the recent midwinter governors' conference in Washington. With several conservatives absent, there were enough votes to eliminate Ruth, but Holshouser quietly left the meeting, preventing a vote for lack of a quorum.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

of Miami to arrange the wedding reception. I had a silent suspicion that everything would go wrong.

Nothing went wrong. On the patio were round tables evenly spaced, topped by embroidered cloths. Across the middle of the swimming pool was a bridge with white railings—a dance floor. At the far end Marcella had built a lacy-looking gazebo for the bridal couple and their attendants, including the best man, Brian Sayrs, the kid with the beard.

As a father of four daughters, this was my third wedding—not counting the numerous society weddings which city editors assigned to me as punishment for forgotten crimes. A lady drummer crossed the bridge to the bandstand and said, "Look. Two swimming pools."

That set the mood. The day before, a Chinese piano tuner called to adjust the white and blacks to proper pitch. His opening statement was, "Chinese house. You know the brass letters outside?" I nodded. "One," he said with contempt, "is upside down."

It became a laughing, dancing wedding. The musicians were on the far side of the pool. They were supposed to play rock music because this noise is what the newlyweds desired. They never got closer than "Tea for Two."

Marcella, a buxom Roman, is a radiant armwaver. "I am fabbergasted," she said. "Such pretty daughters." I was fabbergasted myself, and so was my wife. Never have I tasted hors d'oeuvres such as she and Ann Maffi, a moody smiler, made.

Miniature cantaloupe balls, bread bowl with pepper, fried zucchini strings, prosciutto.

My wife and I had an unusual sensation of enjoying the ride to instant bankruptcy. A handsome, graying man handled the booze and he fixed the mixings as though no order was impossible to fulfill.

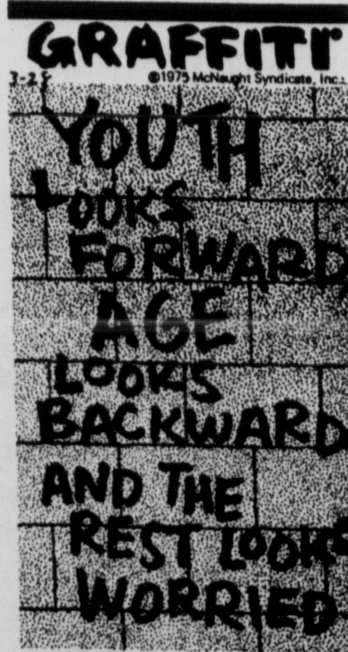

At Irish weddings and funerals, it is important that some get drunk. No one did. I had five champagnes with a dinner which consisted of so many complex servings, except the roast beef, that I was eating unidentified hot cheeses, tomato and chicken.

With a little coaxing, the young people danced on the bridge over the River Kwai. These university kids are rare birds. The orchestra swung into a Jewish hora and, in a trice, they formed a big circle, arms around shoulders, and the Baptists and Methodists and Lutherans executed the dance, laughing and shouting the cadence.

When the band took a break, my old friend Max Lewis set a glass of Canadian Club on the piano and ripped off request numbers. It was too good; too much. I worried about the neighbors and the noise.

At 9:05 p.m., the guests said their thank yous and began to leave. Through the overhead screen, I could see a thin peel of moon and a bright evening star.

I made a wish. I could do no better than to hope that Paul and Karen will know the sweet scent of contentment which Kelly and I have had all these years . . .

'Big Sister' Program Points Out the Sunny Side of the Street

She is 15 years old and has lived in Kingston all her life and yet had never seen the Ashokan Reservoir. Her family does not have a car.

She wanted to do things other girls do like embroider her jeans, take a ride to New Paltz or simply have someone to talk to who could give her their undivided attention.

Last year none of this was possible but today, because of the interest of Theresa Porto Smith, the young Kingston High schooler is able to get out of her underprivileged environment once a week and see the sunny side of the street.

Theresa, who is secretary to Ulster County Auditor Holcombe B. Tomson, was the first of the city's residents to participate in the "Big Sister" program which matches up a woman and an underprivileged girl and allows them to be friends.

"I benefit more from it sometimes than she does," Theresa said, adding that the experience "makes you look at yourself and your surroundings and realize how fortunate you are."

At first Theresa was concerned with what to do with the girl on their once a week evening get-togethers but it all turned out to be very simple because doing something simple seems to have worked out best. Sometimes the two go supermarket shopping together or ride up to the reservoir or mum festival. Or, they go to the movies, play cards or just sit in Theresa's den listening to music and talking together.

At first Theresa's young friend was very withdrawn but today she is more outgoing and relates well to other people, just as Theresa herself does.

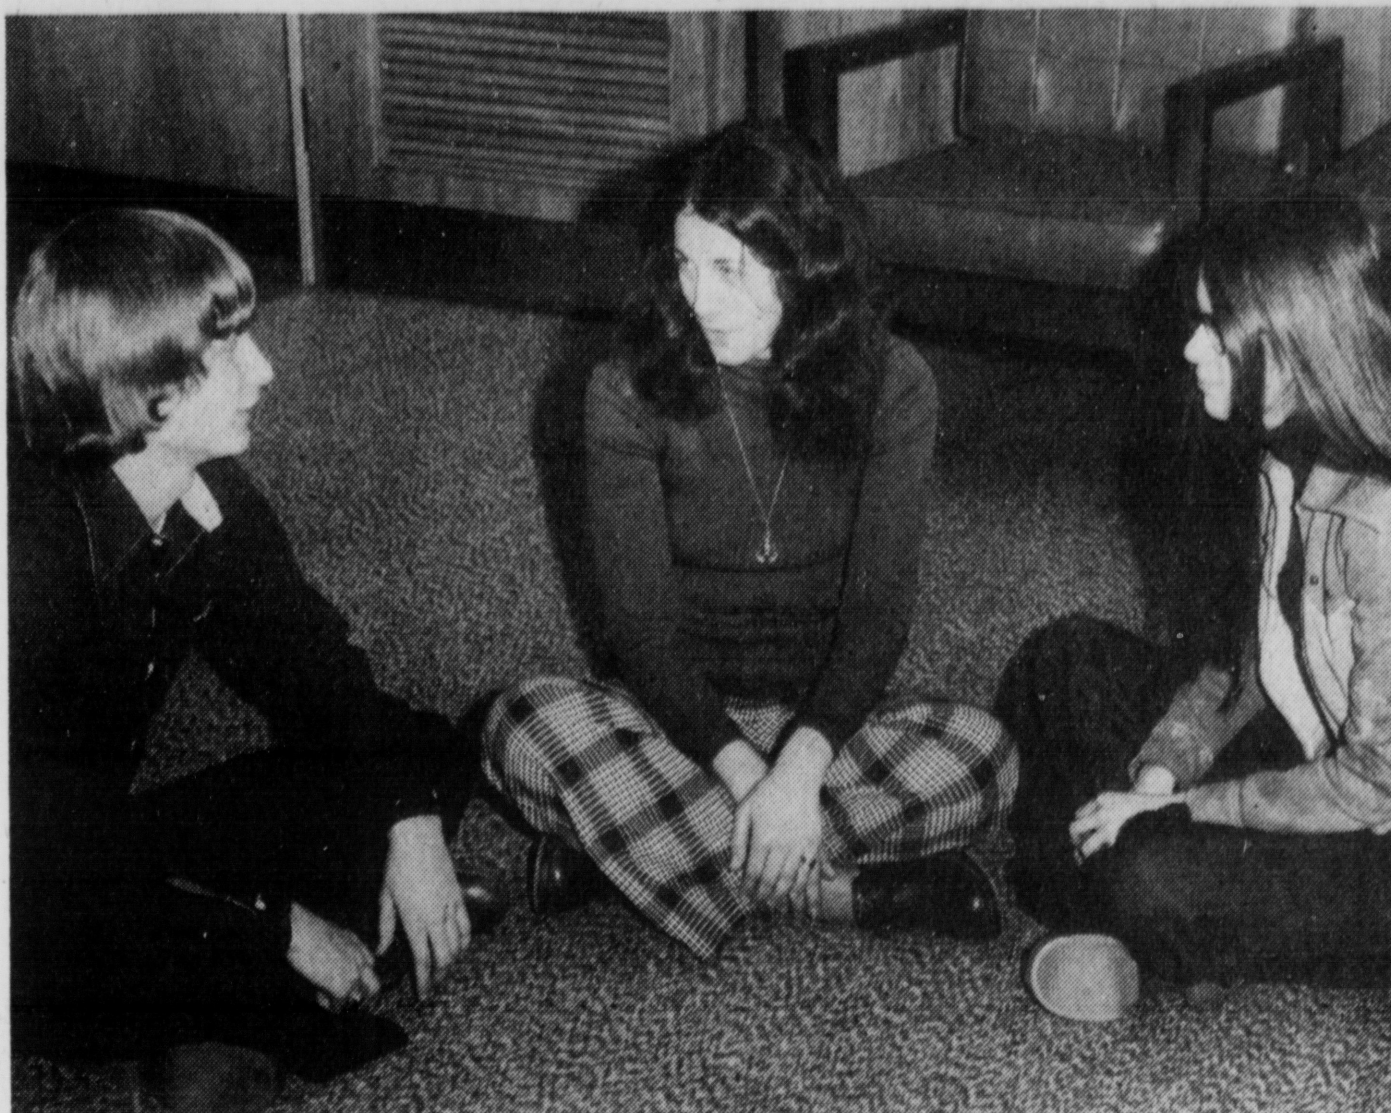

Whether teaching her young friend how to embroider or taking her along on a trip to the laundry, Theresa's enthusiasm for whatever she is doing spills over not only in her role as a "Big Sister" but in her job which she has had and enjoyed for 10 years.

When she is not on the job or assuming her big sister role, she spends much of her other time as an advisor to St. Joseph's Catholic Youth Organization.

Admittedly a bit of a kid herself, who more than once found her blue-jean-garbed self out dancing with the kids at a CYO affair, Theresa usually restricts her activities as an advisor to overseeing the activities, pitching in and helping where needed and guiding the young people.

She must be doing something right for not only does a smile usually grace her face, but it seems infectious. Not only does she need people but they admittedly need her.

her."

Reception for Congresswoman Bella Abzug

A reception for Congresswoman Bella Abzug (D-20th Dist.) is planned for Tuesday, April 1 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Barbara Lockhart, Richard's Farm, Ulster Park.

Ms. Abzug, a New York City Democrat who was first elected to Congress in 1970, will be the speaker later that evening at the Annual Dinner Meeting of the YWCA. The dinner is set for 7 o'clock at Governor Clinton Hotel.

Ms. Abzug was part of the recent congressional delegation to Southeast Asia. A leader of the Democratic left, she is strongly identified with anti-war and pro-women's rights causes, and is a former civil rights lawyer.

Reservations for the dinner may be made with Mrs. Lockhart, chairman.

Spring Concert

The Mid-Hudson Camerata Chorale has scheduled four performances of its spring concert, offering Handel's much-acclaimed oratorio Israel in Egypt.

The Hudson Valley performances will be held in McKenna Theater, State University College at New Paltz, Saturday night, May 10, and at Vassar College Chapel on Sunday afternoon, May 11.

Other performances will be held Utica on April 26 and at St. Mary's Church, Oneonta, on April 27.

The oratorio, Israel in Egypt, a unique composition among Handel's oratorios, requires two full choral ensembles in addition to orchestra and soloists.

The Oneonta Community Chorale will join the Camerata for these performances in all four cities. Dr. Charles Burnsworth of the SUC Oneonta faculty conducts the Oneonta group while Lee H. Pritchard of the SUC New Paltz faculty serves as musical director of the Hudson Valley Chorale.

Tickets for the Hudson Valley performances will be available from members of the Camerata within a few weeks.

The Mid-Hudson Camerata Chorale is located at 70 South Hamilton Street in Poughkeepsie.

Cake Decorating Course at UCCC

Two sections of a credit-free course, Cake Decorating with Buttercream Flowers, is being offered on the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

The course will emphasize more advanced techniques of floral and other designs using buttercream, as well as providing a basic method of making delicious decorative cakes for parties and special occasions. Cake decorating appeals to both men and women.

The first section of the course will meet on six Tuesday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. The registration deadline is April 1. The second section to meet on six Thursday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. begins on April 10 and registrations are due by April 3.

Marie Schussler, of West Hurley, is the instructor for the course. She has taught cake decorating for several years at UCCC.

If you have BankAmericard or Master Charge, you may register by phone, 687-7621, ext. 11 or 12. In-person registration is possible by going to the Office for Continuing Education, Clinton Administration Building, Stone Ridge campus. The office is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Monday through Thursday evenings from 6 to 9 p.m.

Demure Lips

For spring and summer of '75 cosmetic experts are suggesting a lipshape and color that is delicate and demure, reminiscent of the Victorian Gibson Girl look.

Rather than using a pencil to outline the mouth, they suggest outlining a rosebud mouth with a brush in a slightly deeper shade of lipstick than you use to complete your lip makeup.

Little 'Big' Look

Children's clothes for summer are following grownup fashions with kid-sized versions of "leisure" suits for boys and mid "big dresses" smocks and pinafores for girls. The prices are no higher than last year. But there's one precaution for mothers who are accustomed to wash-and-wear. Many of these togs are of natural fibers, so it's back to the ironing board.

State Junior Girls, VFW, Meeting Held

The 11th annual State of New York Junior Girls Units Conference of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars took place March 21-23 at Holiday Inn in Kingston. Mrs. Richmond Taylor of Binghamton represented the National Auxiliary.

State Junior Unit President Wendy Sue Coons of Red Hook presided at the sessions. Mrs. Edmund Chwalisz, state chairman for Junior Girls Units, handled arrangements.

Guests included Mrs. Sidney Lane of Kingston, National Council member representing the State of New York; Mrs. Sam Grecco, state president of the Ladies Auxiliary from Johnstown, as well as several other state officers.

Attending the opening session on Saturday morning to extend greetings to the young ladies were Mayor Francis Koenig, and Mayor Miller D. Magley, Red Hook.

Nineteen Units from throughout New York State presented their flags in a Massing of the Colors at the opening.

One of the highlights of the conference was a banquet Saturday evening honoring State President Wendy Sue Coons. The banquet took place at St. Christopher's School hall in Red Hook and was hosted by Red Hook Post No. 7765 and the Ladies Auxiliary. Many awards were presented to outstanding Junior Girls. More than 300 persons attended including dignitaries from all levels of VFW and Ladies Auxiliaries.

Reports were submitted by all Unit presidents, followed by election of officers. Installation took place Sunday morning at the close of the Conference. Patricia Porth of College Point was installed as the new state president. Other officers include: Kelli Seager of Endicott, senior vice president; Vicky Cughan of Fulton, treasurer; Susan Molay of Brooklyn, chaplain; Tracy Cummings of Mattydale, conductor; and Jane Cole of Owego, guard. Officers were installed by Betty Grecco, state president of the Ladies Auxiliary.

More than 350 girls and their leaders attended from throughout New York State.

Abby's Hopes High For Young Shoplifter

By Abigail Van Buren

1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A little of the light has gone out of my life. My heart is heavy and I can't seem to turn my thoughts to anything else for very long.

I've just discovered that my lovely, 14-year-old daughter is a shoplifter, and has been for some time. Abby, it's as though I have two daughters. One I know, and the other is a stranger to me.

I have always tried to keep the lines of communication open. My husband and I have always tried to teach our children to be honest and law-abiding. I can't understand what went wrong. What would cause a girl who never wanted for anything, and was raised in a good Christian home to go into a store and steal? Where could she have gotten her criminal tendencies? She is going for counseling today as she refuses to talk to me about it. I pray she can be helped. I want her to grow into a beautiful young woman—inside as well as out.

Have you any words of comfort for me?

DESPAIRING MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Don't despair. Your daughter won't talk to you about it because she's too ashamed. She knows how deeply she has disappointed you. Young shoplifters do not necessarily have "criminal tendencies." They sometimes steal for the "thrill" of getting away with something, or to impress their peers with their "courage."

Professional counselors are trained to help children understand their anti-social behavior, and many young shoplifters have matured into respectable, law-abiding citizens.

DEAR ABBY: Our grandson had to marry his high school sweetheart. They had a beautiful, hurry-up church wedding. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding present. Six months later they had a baby boy. Everything went along fine for about a year. Then they got a divorce.

A year later, our grandson married a divorced woman who had two small children. That was also a large church wedding. Everything was pale pink. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding gift. That lasted only seven months.

After being single for two years, this same grandson is going to get married again, this time to a young widow who has a small child. We are hoping for the best.

My question is, do we have to give them a wedding present, too? We are living on Social Security, and it is not easy.

GRANDPARENTS

DEAR GRANDPARENTS: Gift giving (even to grandchildren) is never compulsory. Give them your best wishes now, and wait a while to see if it takes. If it lasts a year, give them an anniversary present.

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago, I fell in love with a married man. We worked for the same company. I was single at the time, but I didn't believe in wrecking marriages (especially where children were involved), so I didn't let the affair get out of hand.

Two years later, I married a wonderful man. I'll admit, I married him for security, but I soon learned to love him in my fashion. I was a faithful wife for six years. After our second child was born, I went back to my old job. The married man was still there, and the old flame was rekindled. We both tried to fight it, but we couldn't. After a while, we picked up our affair where we had left it.

Abby, I have never been happier. He feels the same way. The strange part of it is that I really love my husband, and he loves his wife, but we still love each other.

Tell me, Abby, is it possible to be in love with two people at the same time?

CONFUSED BUT CONTENT

DEAR CONFUSED: No. However, it's possible to "love" more than one person, but the state of being "in love," as most people know it, is strictly a one-to-one relationship.

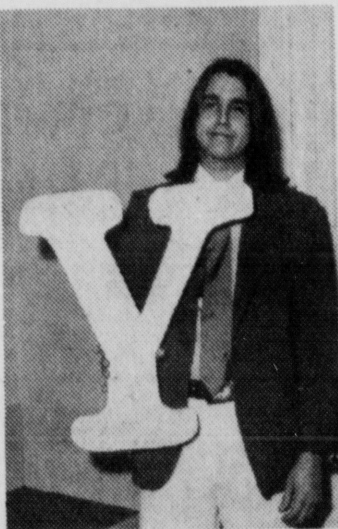

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20) envelope.

Columbiettes' Activities Are Noted

The March meeting of Kingston Columbiettes was highlighted by a formal first degree and introduction of three new members: Mrs. Evelyn Odette Bates, Mrs. Geraldine Mallon, and Miss Lydia Forman.

Upcoming activities include a bus trip to the Easter Show at Radio City Music Hall on April 6. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Louis Bruder of Main Street, Kingston.

The Columbiettes Day of Recollection is planned for April 13 at Linwood. Mrs. Frank Tiano, South Manor Avenue, Kingston, is in charge of reservations.

The Hudson Valley Chapter luncheon will be held at Holiday Inn, Kingston, on April 26. A Mass will be offered at 11 a.m. followed by the luncheon and meeting. Columbiettes interested in attending should contact chairman, Mrs. John Coffey of Kingston before April 1. Co-Chairman is Mrs. Edward Ahl.

Chairman of the local Columbiote Blind Program, Mrs. Edward Ahl, reported that the New York State Columbiettes Transcription Program for the Blind has produced an impressive number of large-type units as well as a special book for pre-school blind, retarded and deaf children.

For the third year, the New York State Council is sponsoring a Poster Contest under the direction of the Environmental and Conservation Committee. Theme for 1975 is "My Contribution to a Cleaner New York." Mrs. Henry Bruck was named chairman of the project.

Among those in attendance at the meeting which was conducted by Mrs. William Sill, president, were the Rev. Msgr. John J. O'Reilly, chaplain; Mrs. John Bohner, district deputy; Mrs. Edward Ahl, supreme sentinel and chairman of the degree; William O'Leary, coordinator.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. William O'Leary and Mrs. Louis Bruder.

CROSSING CAUSES FEAR

'GUARD RAILS' PROTECT CARS FROM 100-FOOT DROP

ASHOKAN DANGER SPOT

... 'It's a Rocky Road' ... And a Hazardous One' ...

By TIM SCHUSTER

LOMONTVILLE

The roads straggle up into the picturesque Marbletown hills from Hurley Mountain Road, one after another north into Hurley.

Marbletown Highway Superintendent Milford VanDemark described the process the town must use every Spring after the frost has wrought its work on the twists and turns and bumps, popping holes in the pavement and vibrating vehicles on washboard roads.

Ashokan Road and Lapla Road were the subject of strong complaint by former Lomontville Fire Chief James Hasenflue—he termed them "hazardous."

"There are various spots where there are no guard rails and drops up to 140 feet. Retaining walls are collapsing in one area; this presents an extreme hazard, especially for school buses," he commented.

Hasenflue said he has brought the road conditions to the attention of the town board and the highway superintendent.

Supervisor Ken Smith and Highway Superintendent VanDemark are well aware of the condition of the roads, as both tell it.

"They are both regular winding country roads; they're no highways," said Smith. On Lapla Road the site for a housing subdivision was reportedly turned down by the zoning board of appeals partially because of resident concern over the effects of increased traffic flow.

There is one spot on Ashokan Road where a culvert bridge protects the unwary traveler from a drop Smith said "must be 100 feet." The bridge is old, and VanDemark said he had been instructed to dump a few loads of gravel along the road there to prevent anyone from going over.

The Freeman recently took a trip over Ashokan and Lapla

Roads, as well as the nearby Johnson Hill and Canary Hill Roads, the former in Marbletown and the latter partially in Hurley.

The roads were bad. They were about as bad as similar mountain roads in Woodstock, Shandaken, Shokan and other Ulster County towns where the people built their individual houses and cabins in places that architects dream about—perched on rock ledges and in tiny meadows surrounded by a stand of tall pine.

We noticed on our trek that a larger percentage of the houses had trucks or jeep-style vehicles in the driveway, a testament to the rugged and changing character of the roadway. We have noticed the same phenomenon on Mead's Mountain in Woodstock and at the local top-of-the-world in Hunter.

Which is not to say that the men in the town trucks will not be back again this year to repair the savagery of the elements.

VanDemark said that the number one project for his crew this year is to resurface the complete four miles or so of Ashokan Road up to the reservoir. One end of Lapla Road will be done at the same time.

"When the frost is out of the road, we'll go over it with a grader," said VanDemark. "We'll be out as soon as the weather permits."

As for the culvert bridge, "Something will be done within the next year," said the highway superintendent.

There will be no guard rails in the foreseeable future along the numerous spots where the road drops away for a mere 15 or 20 feet and swamps crowd the perimeter of the asphalt.

"We don't have any money in the budget for guard rails," shrugged VanDemark. "There are many places we need it on many roads. It costs $25 per section."

Judge Elwyn Declines Further Comment on Case

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON Family Court Judge Hugh R. Elwyn has declined to comment on a decision he rendered Dec. 4 which may have resulted—either directly or indirectly—in the abduction of six-year-old Joanna Pierce.

"I said all I have to say in the decision," Elwyn told the Freeman, "it would be inappropriate for me to comment further."

In that Dec. 4 decision, Elwyn awarded visitation rights to the child's natural father, 56-year-old Franklin Pierce, and further specified that Pierce should be "accorded the right and privilege of having his daughter with him on the weekend of Dec. 20-22."

Pierce was quick to take advantage of the court's offer. Joanna's step-father and natural mother, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Yerkovich of Lake Katrine, haven't seen their child since that December weekend.

Police and private investigators have failed to apprehend the elusive Pierce. Mr. and Mrs. Yerkovich have failed to persuade the FBI to join in the manhunt. But despite the frustrations and agonies of their 94-day ordeal, it is Judge Elwyn who provokes the most bitter criticism from the Lake Katrine couple.

Mrs. Yerkovich contends that Elwyn and Ulster County Family Court must accept all the blame and responsibility for her daughter's abduction. She has termed Elwyn's decision "horrendous" and has accused the judge of being "biased" in favor of Pierce even prior to the Family Court proceedings.

Elwyn granted Pierce visitation rights for alternate weekends and for a 30-day period each summer. Mr. and Mrs. Yerkovich claim there was no justification for such "liberal" visitation privileges; Elwyn, however, offered numerous reasons in his decision for what he termed the "limited" visitation rights granted to Pierce.

One point that apparently weighed heavily in Pierce's favor was his financial security. Elwyn noted in his decision that Pierce set up a trust fund for Joanna that included $80,000 face value municipal bonds, and prefaced that point with this statement:

"In addition to demonstrating his deep emotional attachment for the child, petitioner (Pierce) has also demonstrated his willingness and substantial ability to provide her with financial security."

Later in the decision, Elwyn notes, "... he has on two separate occasions demonstrated to the court his financial responsibility."

Those two occasions, according to Mrs. Yerkovich, occurred in 1974 when Pierce was allowed to take custody of the child for two brief periods while the Family Court custodial battle was in recess. On each of those two occasions, said Mrs. Yerkovich, Pierce was required to post a $10,000 bond to guarantee the child's safe return.

"Of course he brought her back then," she asserted. "He wasn't about to lose $10,000. He was simply biding his time."

Elwyn also apparently based his decision on testimony offered by Joanna's court-appointed guardian, Nancy Risely. In her report to the court, Mrs. Risely offered the opinion that, "... frequent visitation of once a week would be too upsetting to her mother and therefore to Joanna," and added that such frequent visits could

"disrupt the peace, security and stability of the Yerkovich household."

Elwyn apparently agreed, and declined to grant Pierce weekly visits with his daughter, but Mr. and Mrs. Yerkovich claim the judge didn't go far enough. His decision, however, indicates a basic reluctance to deny the child's natural father at least some contact with his daughter.

"The court is aware (that) such visits may cause the child some temporary emotional upset and perhaps some disruption of the Yerkovich household, but this is a price that must be paid if the child's larger long-term interests are to be best served."

Elwyn also notes in his decision: "Joanna was born of two parents and, in my judgment, neither one has any God-given exclusive right to control her destiny."

There is one section of the Family Court decision, however, that particularly points out the tragic irony of Elwyn's decision and the events that followed:

"The court is completely satisfied that the petitioner is in all respects a wholly suitable and proper person to have the temporary care and custody of his daughter, even for an extended period of time. He has ... demonstrated his concern for her financial security ... more importantly, he has also demonstrated his complete trustworthiness."

Mr. and Mrs. Yerkovich's contention that Elwyn seriously misjudged Pierce's "trustworthiness" may not contribute to the recovery of their daughter. But Mrs. Yerkovich has promised that she will continue to fight for changes in Family Court law so that other parents in the future "won't suffer the same heartbreaks."

Tax Rebate Legislation Displeases Fish

By CARL GRAHAM

TOWN OF ULSTER Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) is not entirely happy with the $22.8 billion tax rebate legislation passed by Congress and sent to the President for action.

Fish spent the first evening of the Congressional Easter recess Thursday night speaking to the Town of Ulster Republican Club, discussing the status of current legislation and giving his views on many of the actions taken by the President and Congress.

Speaking in the Bonanza branch office of Heritage Savings Bank on Route 9W, Fish said a tax rebate is "the logical way and the quickest way to stimulate the economy," but cautioned that anti-inflationary, anti-recession and effective energy conservation measures all affect each other, and that it was impossible to take action in one area without causing repercussions in the others.

Speaking of a projected deficit in the 1976 budget, Fish said deficits can be financed either by extracting funds from the private sector, causing interest rates to go up, or by printing new money. "The growth of (the money supply) in the last few years has been way out of proportion," he said.

Turning to the energy situation, Fish noted that until 1969 the United States had been an oil exporter. In 1970 we spent $2.7 billion on imported oil, and that quadrupled by 1974, he said.

"Money that could have been put back into the economy is going overseas," he noted, adding that a second problem was that as the price of oil rose, the percentage of imported oil used here rose too, with 40 percent of today's oil coming from "undependable and unreliable sources" in foreign countries.

"This is not a tolerable position," Fish warned. He proposed a twofold remedy, first by reducing consumption and cutting back on imported oil, second by developing massive programs to increase domestic oil production and to develop alternate sources of energy.

"Our whole industrial system is based on cheap energy," he said. There is no easy way to break the pattern and start using less. It will mean a leaner lifestyle for us."

"What is the good of a good thing if no one knows about it?"

Asked if he thought President Ford's tariff on imported oil was a good idea, he replied: "I don't buy that approach, but it has one great virtue—it galvanized Congress into action."

Fish said there was a feeling in Congress that this was a time for legislators to reassert themselves and become the dominant arm of government. "I hope the President and Congress can work without political motivation to fight inflation and help the economy," he said. "This will be the major test of the present Congress—will it work with the President in the public interest?"

Asked if he believed that last winter's gasoline shortage was created by the oil companies, Fish said he did not. "The boycott (by Arab nations) was real, but the oil companies took advantage of it to get better control over their distributors and to squeeze out marginal firms. I am a member of the Oil and Petroleum Subcommittee of the Small Business Committee and we are going to look into this."

Told that many senior citizens were worried about Social Security benefits, Fish said that recent stories on the availability of funds in the Social Security account were "more headline scares than anything else."

"It is a problem that is not just around the corner, and I am confident that it will be supplemented with regular treasury funds," he said. Fish also said he was open-minded on new concepts for funding Social Security and said he hoped the medical program could be taken out of the system and administered separately.

Fish, whose district includes the City of Kingston and the towns of Esopus, Lloyd, Saugerties and Ulster in Ulster County, was praised by Town of Ulster Assessor Joseph Lohmaier, who said Republican Club members "should be proud that he came to our little town. He didn't forget us and we will not forget him."

The remark brought a round of applause from the partisan audience. Fish said he was there because the Republicans had done a good job in administering the town "and I want to see a continuation of good government here. Count me in the the campaign this fall."

Nicklaus Moving Right on Schedule

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S. C. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus is right on schedule.

The "Golden Bear" always points his game at the major championships and right now he's aiming at the Masters, two weeks away.

Winner in his last previous outing two weeks ago in the Doral Open at Miami, Nicklaus has his game honed to a nearperfect pitch as evidenced by his play in the opening round of the Heritage Golf Classic here on this island resort just off the southern South Carolina coast.

Nicklaus, playing what he called "under the conditions, one of my better rounds in the last couple of years," battled through a gusty wind Thursday to post a five-under-par 66 and went into today's second round of this $200,000 tournament with a three-stroke lead over five runners-up.

U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, winner here in 1971 and 1973, headed up that group that shot two-under 69s Thursday. The others were Don January, Bruce Crampton, Andy North and Tom Kite.

Only two others in the 102-man field were able to break par in the first round over the tricky Harbourtown Course that Nicklaus helped design. They were Tom Weiskopf and John Mahaffey, both at 70.

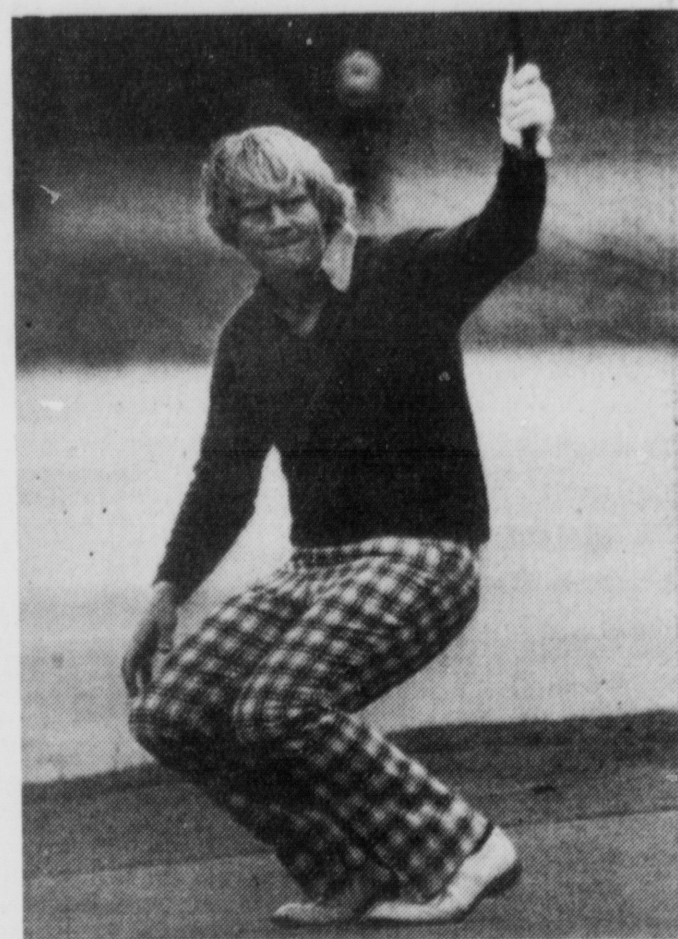

Nicklaus, in a masterful understatement, said, "I played reasonably well."

"The wind was very difficult," he said. "It was hard to pick the right club out of the bag. It was a tough day to play golf and I'm surprised scores were as low as they were."

The wind was on all the golfers' minds Thursday.

"You just had to guess which club to use," said Kite. "You could have just flipped a coin and if it landed on its side, that probably would have been right."

The field for the Heritage is

the best on the tour this year with 26 of the top 27 money-winners on hand, plus South African Gary Player who just returned to the United States after more than six months absence.

Player, who had not played in any tournament for nearly two months, shot an even-par 71 Thursday and said considering how long it had been since he played a competitive round, "I was pleased with it."

Defending champion Johnny Miller was far back in the field with a seven-over-par 78 and didn't want to talk about it.

"What can you say when you just play lousy?" asked Miller.

Arnold Palmer was one under through the first nine, but wound up at three-over 74.

Lee Trevino had an even bigger blowup, going out in four under, then playing six over on the back nine for a 73.

"That wind was really blowing," said Trevino. "I'm usually a wind player but the greens here are so small that you've got to hit the ball high to stay on them."

Nicklaus will not play next week at Greensboro, N.C. Instead, he'll go to the Augusta National to get in some early on-course practice for the Masters which begins April 10. That has been his normal procedure for some years now and four Masters championships makes it tough to fault his routine.

Nicklaus was asked if his game is tuned to the point he'd like for the Masters. "I hope so," Jack replied cautiously.

Trout Conditions Rated Excellent

KINGSTON

Ulster County anglers should find excellent water conditions for the New York State trout season opening on April 1, according to survey of streams.

Prospects for the state as a whole were described today as "slightly better than average" by Commissioner of Environmental Education Ogden Reid. "Our generally mild winter with less snow than normal means that most streams, especially those in the southern zone ought to be lower and clearer than they usually are."

The outlook for the Ulster-Sullivan area, one of the finest trout sections in the nation, is for most streams to be flowing low and clear. At higher elevations in the Catskills remaining snow cover does not exceed six inches. Unless there is considerable precipitation before opening day there will be little early season flooding conditions.

Although many early season anglers associate trout fishing with flowing streams, some excellent early season potential exists in New York City reservoirs. In Croton Falls Reservoir, Titus Reservoir, West Branch Reservoir, Cross River Reservoir and Kensico Reservoir brown trout attain large size. Fish from two to five pounds are common and each year a few fish over 10 pounds are taken.

Stream conditions should also be excellent and many ponds will be free of ice in Delaware and Schoharie counties. Stocking will have been accomplished in streams in the eastern portion of the region.

Fishing regulation changes in the region include: Trout Pond in Delaware County, three-trout creel limit; Beaverkill, Delaware County, an additional 1.6 mile-long Special Fishing Area (catch-and-release regulations, artificial lures only) has been established in the vicinity of Horton and will be appropriately posted.

Ulster County anglers will be heading for their favorite haunts — the portal, the Esopus and Sawkill, with the usual heavy pressure at Phoenicia and the side streams.

A last minute change in weather, such as heavy rains could knock all predictions into a cocked hat. Still, to the avid fisherman, the weather is never too bad to wet a line on opening day even though it means risking the traditional fisherman's luck.

Stocking progress is about average for this time of the year, Commissioner Reid estimated. Many streams in the southern part of the state will have received their initial stocking by April 1 but little, if any, stocking will have been started in the more northern waters.

The Department of Environmental Conservation will be stocking approximately 7.4 million trout and salmon during 1975. The Department stocks 700 lakes and ponds with trout or salmon, along with 4,400 miles on 1,100 trout streams.

Total trout stream mileage in New York is approximately 15,000 miles, with two-thirds of these waters managed for wild life fish, supporting adequate trout levels by natural spawning.

Although some waters may be ice-free this year that are normally frozen, fishermen are reminded that except where specifically permitted, trout may not be taken through the ice. Anglers, of course, are permitted to fish in natural openings in the ice, such as where tributaries empty into a lake. In fact, such natural opening are very productive for early season fishing.

Commissioner Reid also reminded fishermen that they can help improve future angling prospects by cooperating with Department biologists and reporting all tagged fish caught. They should report complete details of their catch, including location, species, weight and tag number. Information derived from these reports help to evaluate stocking and other management measures which benefit all fishermen.

Pirates Waive Blass

By U P I

Eight walks in one inning means a lot more in spring training than one slightly tarnished World Series ring.

Which is why Steve Blass, the key link of the Pittsburgh Pirates with their world championship team of 1971, was placed on waivers by the club Thursday for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

The popular righthander was given his walking papers after pitching just 6 2-3 innings for the Pirates this spring, getting rocked for 13 earned runs and 17 walks. In his last outing — one inning against the Chicago White Sox Monday — he walked eight batters and forced in four runs.

"I don't think I'll pursue a job with another team," Blass said. "If someone makes an overture I'd probably consider it. But I've always pitched for the Pirates and I don't have a lot of desire to pitch for someone else."

Blass rose from relative obscurity to win two 1971 World Series games against the Baltimore Orioles — including the decisive seventh game — and give Pittsburgh its first championship in more than a decade.

Both of Blass' victories were complete games and his seventh-game triumph that year still stands as the last complete game pitched in the World Series.

The following year Blass posted a 19-8 record, but sometime in between his last start of 1972 and his first exhibition appearance of 1973 he misplaced home plate.

Blass slumped to a 3-9 record in 1973 and his earned run average soared to 9.81. He was farmed out to the International League's Charleston Charlies last season but even the lesser competition could not stifle his miseries. In Triple-A, his record dipped once again to 2-8 while his ERA zipped to 9.74.

And now, at 32 years of age, the Steve Blass era is over.

"I'm very proud of the 16 years I spent in this organization," Blass said. "This is an unhappy situation but I have no regrets except maybe that it didn't last longer."

Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh said the decision to cut Blass was heartbreaking because "of the close relationship I've had with Steve."

Life went on in the Pittsburgh camp Thursday without Blass, however, as the Pirates pummeled the Detroit Tigers 5-2 behind Al Oliver's four RBI.

Deron Johnson, battling to win a job with the Boston Red Sox after being given his unconditional release from the club at the end of last season, hit his third home run of the spring and drove in two runs to lead Boston past the Chicago White Sox 6-1.

Tom Grieve collected three hits to lead Texas past Atlanta 6-2, Willie Crawford homered leading off the bottom of the 10th inning to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 4-3 victory over Minnesota, and the Cincinnati Reds jumped on Catfish Hunter for four runs in shutting out the New York Yankees 4-0.

Ex-Cub Billy Williams singled and homered to propel Oakland to a 7-1 clubbing of a split squad of California Angels and Joe Lahoud cracked a two-run home run to highlight a seven-run ninth inning as the rest of the Angels scored an 8-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Ed Crosby's two-run homer in the 10th provided Cleveland with an 8-6 triumph over San Francisco, and Fred Kendall singled to drive in Mike Ivie in the 10th inning to give San Diego a 2-1 conquest of Milwaukee.

Ted Simmons belted three home runs and teammate Ron Fairly added a fourth but it wasn't enough to salvage a win for the St. Louis Cardinals, who fell 14-9 to the New York Mets. The game was played with an experimental baseball and the two teams combined for 29 hits and six home runs.

2,001 Points for Gordie

By U P I

Instead of "2,001: A Space Odyssey," it was "2,001: A Hockey Odyssey," in Houston Thursday night.

The star of the show was Gordie Howe, who scored two goals and two assists for the Houston Aeros in their 8-0 victory over the Winnipeg Jets. The four points enabled Howe, who will celebrate his 47th birthday Monday, to increase his major league hockey regular season career point total to 2,001.

In 25 seasons with the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, Howe tallied 1,809 points on 786 goals and 1,023 assists. Now in his second season with Houston of the World Hockey Association, Howe has 192 points on 63 goals and 129 assists.

Howe's 31st goal opened the scoring for Houston at 11:08 of the first period and his 32nd at 9:03 of the final period increased the Aeros' lead to 5-0 and provided him with point No. 1,999. Only 27 seconds later, Howe reached the 2,000 point plateau when he assisted on a goal by Jim Sherritt and he finished out the game by assisting on his son Mark's 32nd goal at 16:10 of the final stanza.

The victory enabled Houston to clinch first place in the WHA's West Division as goalie Ron Grahame recorded his fourth shutout and the club's sixth, a league record.

In other WHA games, New England downed Cleveland 5-3, San Diego tripped Indianapolis 5-2 and Baltimore tied Edmonton 2-2.

LPGA Plans Appeal

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal Judge Charles Moyer awarded $13,500 in damages to golfer Jane Blalock Thursday and ordered the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) to pay her legal fees of $95,303.

Attorneys for the LPGA said the decision would be "appealed in its entirety" to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Miss Blalock earlier had been awarded $4,500 by a jury in her antitrust suit against the LPGA, which had suspended the golfer from tournament competition.

Moyer based his award on the money Miss Blalock would have earned if she had won the LPGA tournaments from which she was suspended.

Gulfstream Boycott Ends

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Saturday at Gulfstream Park may turn out as expected after all.

Track officials and disgruntled horsemen were all set today to stage the Florida Derby Day Saturday — and among those entered are unbeaten champion Foolish Pleasure, in quest of his 10th straight victory.

A partial one-day boycott of Gulfstream races by the horsemen came to an end as racing secretary Eddie McKinsey collected 149 entries Thursday for Saturday's 10-race program, including nine entrants for the $125,000-added Florida Derby, the state's richest horse race.

Today's program will feature only 77 horses in the 10 races, including one race with only five entrants. That situation was the result of the boycott called Tuesday night by Harry Benson, president of the Florida Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association (FHBPA).

The boycott was staged to protest Gov. Reubin Askew's pledge to veto a bill offered by Rep. Don Tucker, D-Tallahassee, to prn e inaneal relief for the ailing Florida thoroughbred industry.

Benson and Gulfstream President Jimmy Donn Jr. met privately Thursday afternoon and announced afterward the boycott was over and the two had agreed on amendments to the Tucker bill which would gain Donn's support, setting up a different money distribution formula.

Tucker was due here today to discuss the amendments with track officials and the horsemen. The horsemen feel that if they can present a unified front with track officials at the upcoming legislative session, the Tucker bill will have a chance to survive the governor's veto.

When the entries came in for the Derby, Foolish Pleasure drew two more rivals than expected. Pair-by-Pair Stable supplemented Mikeydike at a cost of $5,000 and Pedro Baptista Jr., whose father won the 1971 Kentucky Derby with the Venezuelan colt Canonero II, entered Rolo y Rolo.

IM Record Holder

Fred Tyler of Indiana University swims his way to new American record in 200-yard individual medley with time of 1:50.628 at NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships in Cleveland. Old mark was 1:51.280. Defending champion Southern California leads Indiana, 117-97, after one day's competition.

BREWER (L), NORM VAN LIER BATTLE

Cavaliers Become Defensive Demons

The Cleveland Cavaliers had good reason to be afraid. Here they were, fighting for the first playoff berth in their five-year history and they had to play on a court where they had never before won a game.

But fear does strange things and it turned the Cavaliers into defensive demons Thursday night. Cleveland beat Chicago at its own defense-oriented game and downed the Bulls 86-83.

The victory left the Cavaliers a game ahead of idle Houston in the National Basketball Association's Central Division going into tonight's crucial matchup against the Rockets. Each team has four regular season games left.

Dick Snyder scored 11 points to help Cleveland outscore Chicago 17-2 in a 4-22 span of the third quarter and set up the triumph. Cleveland had five players in double figures, led by Jim Chones with 16, while Chet Walker of the Bulls led all scorers with 18 points.

"You're scared when you come in because you know you can't play bad and if you don't play good, you'll be run right out of there," said Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch. "Our motto is keep trying and never surrender but the Bulls are a great basketball team and you can't make defensive errors on them."

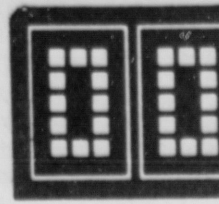

In the only other NBA games, the Golden State Warriors beat the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 111-103 and the Detroit Pistons downed the Phoenix Suns 91-79.

Warriors 111, Kings 103

Rick Barry scored 34 points and Derek Dickey had a career-high 23 rebounds in powering streaking Golden State over K.C.-Omaha. The victory was the Warriors' fifth straight and enabled them to pass Chicago as the team with the best record in the Western Conference. Golden State is 46-42 while Chicago is 44-42. Nate Archibald led the Kings with 29 points, failing to score 30 for the first time in 10 games.

Pistons 91, Suns 79

Detroit, led by Bob Lanier's 26 points, outscored Phoenix 31-10 in the third quarter to take command and defeat the Suns. Lanier had 12 of his points in the quarter when he hit on 6-of-8 shots. The Suns' 10 points in the third quarter and 32 points in the second half were the lowest ever in the seven-year history of the franchise. Charlie Scott led Phoenix with 19 points.

UCLA in Familiar Role for NCAA Cage Championships

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — UCLA, with Indiana resting on the sidelines, will wear the familiar favorite's mantle when the NCAA basketball championship semifinals unfolds Saturday with the Bruins going against Louisville, and Kentucky, the team that knocked off the No. 1 rated Hoosiers, pitted against unheralded Syracuse.

It's a role John Wooden's tall and talented Bruins, led by All America Dave Meyers, are used to, having won an incredible nine national championships in the past 11 seasons.

Kentucky, 25-4, will face Syracuse, 23-7, at 12:10 p.m. PDT in the first semifinal game followed by a meeting of UCLA, 26-3, and Louisville, 27-2, at 2:10 p.m. Both games will be on national television (NBC).

The finals are scheduled at 6:10 p.m. Monday at the San Diego Sports Arena.

"We spent a lot of emotion in the Indiana game," said Joe Hall, the man who succeeded the legendary Adolph Rupp as Kentucky's head coach three years ago.

"By Saturday, I hope our players can get down to earth."

In the final regular season ratings, Indiana was ranked first, UCLA second, Louisville third, and Kentucky fourth. Syracuse's Orangemen were not even among the top 20.

Beaten by Indiana by a devastating 24 points in December, Kentucky sent Bob Knight's Indiana team — heavily favored to go all the way in the 37th NCAA — home by scoring a 92-90 win in the Midwest Regional finals at Dayton, Ohio.

The UCLA-Louisville confrontation rates as the No. 1 attraction Saturday and matches the 64-year-old Wooden, the teacher, versus the pupil, the Cardinals' Denny Crum.

In the NCAA semifinals at Los Angeles in 1972, Wooden's Bruins beat Crum's Cardinals 96-77.

In four highly successful years at Louisville, Crum, 37, a former Wooden player who served as UCLA assistant coach for three seasons, has compiled a 97-21 record.

While UCLA was crushing Arizona State, 89-75, at Portland, Ore., in the finale of the West Regional last weekend, Louisville was handling Lefty Driesell's Maryland Terrapins, 96-82, in the Midwest Regional title game at Las Cruces, N.M.

"I don't think UCLA has a home court advantage playing in San Diego," said Crum. "Naturally, they'll have more fans because it's so much closer for them. But fans tend to root for the underdog and we're definitely the underdog in this game."

"If I had my druthers," said Wooden, now in his 27th season at UCLA, "I'd rather not play against a former player or assistant or very close friend."

"You're closer to your players than anyone except your own children. To me, Denny will always be one of my boys."

Added Crum, "Yes, I'd rather be playing somebody else, too. But we don't have any choice in that. Just like three years ago, I can't let my feelings interfere with my team's approach to the game. We have to get ready for UCLA just like we get ready for anybody else."

Making its 22nd appearance in NCAA post-season basketball play — compared to UCLA's 16th — Kentucky will be looking for its fifth championship but first since 1958. All four titles came under Rupp, now an executive with the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association.

Rupp, 73, accompanied the Wildcats here. Hall formerly played under the famed Baron.

"I'm very, very proud of Coach Hall," Rupp said. "He's done a great job. I think this is the strongest Kentucky team since the Fabulous Five in 1948 and '49 and I'd be disappointed if they don't win it all."

Syracuse isn't bothered by being overlooked, according to coach Roy Danforth. He said he's used to it.

"Against LaSalle in the Palestra (at Philadelphia), we were very much the underdog," he said. "Against North Carolina, we were very much the underdog and we managed to win that one, too. A lot of people had the underdogs against Kansas State and we were fortunate enough to win."

Syracuse clinched its first trip to the semifinals with a 95-87 overtime verdict over Kansas State in the East Regional championship at Providence, R.I.

UCLA will have the only first team All America in the NCAA round of four in Meyers, hardworking 6-8 senior forward. However, Meyers, the Bruins' No. 1 scorer and rebounder this season, has been severely hampered since Feb. 22 because of a charley horse.

Louisville's Wesley Cox has been playing in pain, too. Cox, a 6-5 sophomore forward, got 17 points against Maryland last weekend in a game in which Crum did not expect him to play.

Kentucky's attack is built around 6-5 forward Kevin Grevey, a second team All America who has averaged 23.5 points a game in his senior season. Leading the Orangemen into the semifinals will be 6-9 forward Rudy Hackett, a senior who has a 22.2 scoring average.

Decker: Net Coach

B. Edson Decker has been named men's and women's varsity tennis coach at Ulster County Community College, Athletic Director Al DiBernardo anounced today.

Decker, Associate Professor of Health and Physical Education at UCCC, coached the men's varsity in 1971 and 1972 and last season was in charge of the women's varsity. Pete Zeeh coached the men's team the last two years.

A 1955 graduate of Cortland State, Decker has coached crew on the scholastic level and tennis at both the junior college and college level.

All-Stars Meet In California

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The first California Basketball Classic between the California High School All-Americans and the United States High School All-Americans will take place at the Arena Sunday.

Bill Cartwright, 7-1 1/2, of Elk Grove High School, the nation's premiere prep basketball center, will lead the California team. He will be joined by All-Americans David Greenwood, 6-10, Roy Hamilton, 6-2, both of Verbum Dei, and James Hardy, 6-9, of Long Beach Jordan.

Brad Holland, 6-3, of Crescenta Valley, suffered a fractured ankle last week and will be unable to play.

Cartwright, who will be attending the University of San Francisco this fall, has a 38.9 scoring average and a 21.9 rebound average.

The U.S. team includes in part All-Americans Bill "Poodles" Willoughby, 6-8, 38.7-point average from New Jersey; Bernard Toone, 6-9, 31-point average, of New York; Winford Boynes, 6-7, 28.1 average, Oklahoma, and Kyle Macy, 6-2, 35.6 average and James Bradley, 6-8, 34.7 average, both of Tennessee.

The proceeds from the game will be used to support the Olympic Development High School League, which consists of eight district all-star teams from Southern California.

Miss America Part of Outdoor Advertising Survey Nationwide

Shirley Cothran

Miss America
1975

THE BILLBOARD SEEN BY THOUSANDS

(UPI)

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — By now, an estimated 90 per cent of the adult population in the United States has seen billboards with the picture of a pretty girl and the words: "Shirley Cothran, Miss America 1975."

"The bare fact that it just says Miss America 1975 with a picture, makes most people say, 'What the hell is it doing there?'" said Albert Marks Jr., chairman of the nation's oldest beauty pageant.

The 10,000 billboards strung out across the country are part of a survey to measure the effectiveness of outdoor advertising. Ad men in New York want to see how many remember Miss America's name after seeing a billboard.

The man who dreamed up the campaign, Melvin Grayson, vice president of the Institute of Outdoor Advertising on Madison, said the average American has seen the billboard 10 to 15 times since it went up in early January.

Halcyon Rate Hike

ALBANY — The New York Public Service Commission has accepted a tariff filing by Halcyon Park Water Works Company Inc. under which the company will increase its rates by $1.747 annually.

Halcyon Park serves 132 customers in the Halcyon Park subdivision in the Town of Ulster. A staff analysis of the data submitted by the company indicated that the increase would permit Halcyon Park to carry out further improvements in its system, as recommended by the PSC staff.

The new tariff, which increases revenues by about 27 percent, is effective April 1.

Before the campaign, only 3 per cent of the population could identify Miss America by name. When it ends this month, the percentage should be closer to 20, said Grayson, a former speechwriter for Spiro Agnew.

Miss Cothran, 22, of Denton, Tex., said she is recognized much more frequently than before the billboards went up, even though more than 80 million persons saw her crowned last fall on national television.

"I was in Boston not too long ago in a department store. There was a crowd of people following me around. What I picked up and put down, they picked up and bought."

"That never happened before the billboards," she said.

Miss Cothran said that when the campaign began, her parents started getting letters asking, "Why are you spending millions of dollars advertising your daughter?"

Grayson said some who saw the billboards have even asked if Miss Cothran is running for public office. She said she has no such plans.

If an advertiser had paid for the billboard campaign, it would have cost as much as $1.5 million. However, the space has been donated by local billboard owners who wanted to participate in the recognition survey.

Grayson said it is the first time a national campaign has been staged just for research purposes.

During the 1960s, he said, there was a smaller scale research campaign which used the slogan: "Calvin Coolidge was our 30th President."

After that campaign, the number of persons who could correctly identify the 30th president jumped from 4 per cent to 30 per cent, he said.

Miss Cothran, who will make more than $80,000 this year in personal appearance fees, said "it was really an ego trip" to see herself on the billboards. She saw the first one from a plane window when she landed at an Arizona airport.

"It was the biggest Shirley Cothran I've ever seen," she said.

Although other Miss Americas have gone on to lucrative careers in show business, Miss Cothran said she plans to return to North Texas State University and work for her Ph.D. after her reign as Miss America ends this September.

The only personal appearances Miss Cothran, a Southern Baptist, has planned after September will be in churches.

"I don't think I'm especially talented. And, I don't think there is a great demand for guest flute players," said Miss Cothran, who won the Miss America talent competition with a flute solo last fall.

Firehouse Groundbreaking Set

RUBY

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new Ruby Firehouse will be held Sunday, April 6 at 2 p.m.

Planned for a four-acre site on Main Street in Ruby, the 112-by-65-foot, six-bay firehouse will be built with the help of a Farm Home Administration loan, to be paid off with money collected during department-sponsored fund-raising activities.

Construction of the new building will not involve additional taxes for the residents of the fire district.

Charles Coutant, president of the Ruby Fire Department, said construction is expected to begin near the end of April, with completion anticipated next fall.

Joseph Schatzel and Sons of Kingston are contractors for the project.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., as well as local, county and state officials, are expected to attend the April 6 groundbreaking ceremonies. Officials from the local Army Reserve Unit, which has agreed to do the filling and grading work at the site, will also attend. Fire department officials have also invited interested local residents to attend and participate in the activities.

The property for the new firehouse was donated by Francis Young and Lawrence Byrne. In addition to six bays for the department's equipment, the structure will contain a meeting hall and a kitchen for department and community activities.

At present, the department's three pieces of mobile equipment are housed in a two-story garage, with one of the trucks required to remain outside at all times. The new building will enable all of the department's equipment to be stored inside, and will also provide for future expansion of the department.

At one time, the Ruby Fire Department was combined with the Mt. Marion Fire Department. The two units are now separate, and the Mt. Marion Fire Department is likewise building a new facility for its equipment.

To help meet expenses for the new building, the Ruby volunteers have scheduled a "coin drop" this Saturday on Main Street in Ruby and on Old King's Highway.

The Ruby Fire Department has about 30 active volunteers, as well as a Ladies' Auxiliary Unit. Fire Department officers, in addition to Coutant, include Calvin Johnson, vice-president; Edward Steedle, secretary; Elsie Scheffel, recording secretary and Robert DeWitt, treasurer. William Scheffel is fire chief and Raymond Scheffel is assistant chief.

Death Notice

Mrs. Sibylla M. Strohshahl
Mrs. Sibylla M. Strohshahl, 59, of 122 Market Street, Saugerties, died suddenly Wednesday at the Benedictine Hospital. She was the school nurse at the Riccardi School, Glasco, and was active in community affairs. Born in New York City she was the daughter of Ernest A. and Augusta Manger Schirmer, and had been a resident of Saugerties most of her life. She was graduated from Saugerties High School, Benedictine School of Nursing, and attended Plattsburgh State Teachers College, New Paltz and Russell Sage. She was a member and past matron of Immanuel Chapter 517, Order of the Eastern Star; member of Sawverkill Country Club; and past president of Wiltwyck Women's Golf Association. In addition to her parents, she is survived by her husband, Edward V. Strohshahl, two daughters: Clare of Brooklyn, Nancy of Boston; two sons: Edward E. Strohshahl of West Camp and Michael Strohshahl at home; a sister, Mrs. William (Ernestine) Daum of Ulster Park. Funeral services will be held Saturday 2 p.m. at the Hartley-Lamoureaux Inc., Funeral Home, Saugerties. Burial will be in Blue Mountain Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home this evening 7-9. Memorial donations may be made to the Benedictine Hospital Building Fund.

Abortion Doctor Surrenders

Dr. Henry Morgentaler, flashing the victory sign and shouting "we shall prevail," Thursday surrenders to Montreal police to begin serving an 18-month jail sentence on an illegal abortion conviction. The 50-year-old Polish-born doctor was mobbed by supporters carrying placards and flowers at the steps to the police station. (UPI)

Crash Course For Tate's Girl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Retired Rear Adm. Jackson R. Tate has been giving his Russian-born daughter a crash course in the English language and American ways, according to the admiral's son, Hugh Tate.

The son, a retired Navy captain, is the half-brother of the Russian visitor, Victoria Fyodorova. He said he was introduced to the Russian actress over the telephone.

"Her first words to me were, 'Hello, doll. When will I see you?'" the younger Tate said Thursday.

Asked if Victoria spoke English, the captain replied, "She knew a few words of English when she got here, but she has just about tripled her vocabulary. My father is giving her a crash course in English."

The son is acting as spokesman for his father and Victoria, who have gone into seclusion after seeing each other for the first time Sunday.

"He and Victoria will surface for a news conference around April 14 or 15," the younger Tate told the Florida Times-Union by telephone Thursday.

Miss Fyodorova, 29, a green-eyed Russian movie actress, received permission to visit her father and Victoria.

Casey dismissed the case a day and one-half after the trial began.

visit her ailing father, 77, early last week after her efforts to obtain the visa gained worldwide attention.

Tate and his daughter changed their plans for a public meeting at the last minute and Miss Fyodorova slipped into the country unannounced. The two have been in seclusion since last Sunday somewhere in northeastern Florida near Orange Park, where Tate lives.

Victoria was the product of a World War II love affair between Tate, then stationed in Moscow, and Russian movie actress Zoya Fyodorova. When the affair was discovered, Tate was expelled from the country and Miss Fyodorova was sentenced to prison on charges of espionage. Victoria was born a few months later.

The newspaper National Enquirer released a statement Thursday saying it had world rights to the story and quoting Tate as saying he was "overwhelmed with happiness" at his daughter's visit.

"These last few days with my daughter have been the most wonderful of my life," Tate was quoted as saying. "Vicki is even more beautiful than her photographs."

Medical Action Dismissed

A malpractice suit in Ulster County Supreme Court brought against Benedictine Hospital, was dismissed Thursday by Justice John T. Casey who ruled that the evidence did not warrant submitting the question of negligence to the jury.

Casey dismissed the case a day and one-half after the trial began.

The plaintiff in the case was Eddington Mduba, as administrator of the estate of the late Regina Mduba, formerly of Kingston, Mduba, now a Dutchess County resident alleged that the hospital was negligent in its treatment of his wife, following an automobile accident Feb. 6, 1971 on Route 32 in New Paltz. Mrs. Mduba subsequently died of injuries sustained in the accident.

A six-person jury was selected Tuesday, trial began Wednesday and Justice Casey dismissed the case at about 12:30 p.m. Thursday.

Francis X. Tucker of the firm of Cook, Tucker and Dwyer, was counsel for the hospital and Gunther Kilch was trial counsel for Mduba.

Coroner's Ruling

PLATTEKILL County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp has ruled accidental death in the fatal car crash Thursday morning that claimed the life of 23-year-old Gregory Walker, of Beacon off Route 32 in the Town of Plattekill. Chipp said Walker died of a fractured skull and a broken neck. He was alone in his car at the time of the one-car accident.

WORRIED MOM: (Q.) My mother is worried about me. I'm only 13 but I think I'm entitled to have freedom. She lets me do things, but always asks questions like "How will you get there?" and "When will you be home?"

Also, after a phone call from my teacher because of an incident, my mother won't let me do anything, like talking to boys! That's all she thinks I care about. Please help me. I'm young, but not that young. — Prisoner in Pennsylvania

(A.) If your teacher calls often about trouble you are involved in at school, your mother SHOULD be concerned. No trouble at school, no calls from school, and no penalties. Keep away from those "incidents."

If your mother and father take you places and pick you up, the "How will you get there?" and "When will you be home?" questions will be answered, and your parents will worry less. Suggest this to them.

Most 13-year-old girls are VERY interested in boys. Your mother should know this. Talk to her about the boys you like.

UNFAIR?: (Q.) Why is it OK for guys to play the field and not get a bad reputation? My sister and I both feel that it is unfair to girls because if a girl hangs around several boys she is automatically a "slut." People don't stop to think that all the guys might just be friends. — Criticized in Oklahoma

(A.) A girl who wishes to do so is free to date several boys or to be friendly with them, whether she dates them or not. Anyone who criticizes a girl who does this has a small mind and should be ignored.

Refugees Arrive at Tuy Hoa

South Vietnamese refugees from Pleiku ride on a government military truck with their belongings hanging on its sides as they arrived in Tuy Hoa after fleeing from the central highlands where communists occupy most of the big provinces. (UPI)

Refugees Panic at Da Nang Airport

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces captured another province today and seized a provincial capital only 15 miles from Da Nang, where mobs of refugees trying to flee the city panicked and so crowded airport runways that pilots refused to land.

The gains gave the Communists control of more than half of South Vietnam and 12 of its 44 provinces.

Military sources said nearly 100,000 refugees mobbed the airport at the port city of Da Nang today and 6,000 of them stormed the runway to try to get aboard evacuation flights, but pilots refused to land because of the chaos.

Vietnamese and American airplanes tonight resumed ferrying refugees out of Da Nang, the only major city in northern South Vietnam still under government control.

An Air Vietnam DC4 and a chartered World Airways Boeing 727 brought about 240 refugees, most of them women and children, into Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport at nightfall, and airline officials said they hoped to keep the planes moving in and out of Da Nang around the clock.

Reports from Da Nang described the city as being in a state of almost total confusion and disorder with "quite a bit of looting going on."

Military sources said the provincial capital of Hoi An 15 miles to the south fell today to an artillery and infantry attack, leaving Da Nang's southern flank wide open.

Hoi An, which once had a 50,000 population, is the capital of Quang Nam Province.

The South Vietnamese command in Saigon announced the loss of Bao Loc, 96 miles northeast of Saigon, in a two-hour attack that began with heavy artillery fire this morning.

A spokesman said the defenders of the capital of Lam Dong Province fled to Di Linh, 20 miles to the east at the southern edge of the central highlands.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces now have captured 13 province capitals and 12 provinces, all but one since March 10.

As the military situation deteriorated, the U.S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Frederick Weyand, arrived in Saigon to begin a four-day fact-finding mission for President Ford. Weyand, who was the last commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, met with President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials.

In Da Nang, penniless government soldiers who fled to the city when the government ordered them out of areas surrendered to the Communists, fought gunbattles with police in the downtown area Thursday night.

The United States has evacuated most of its personnel from the city, 370 miles north of Saigon on the coast of the South China Sea.

U.S. officials said Consul General Al Francis and "about four or five others" remained behind to try to get the refugee evacuation program moving.

Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, South Vietnam's top officer in the northern sector, ordered Marines into the Da Nang airport in a desperate attempt to restore order and try to get the refugee airlift underway.

Phnom Penh Airport Hit by Artillery

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel forces fired a barrage of artillery and rocket rounds at Phnom Penh's airport today, halting the lifeline U.S. airlift to the besieged Cambodian capital.

Military sources said the insurgents fired at least 28 shells at Pochentong airport this morning, killing two persons and wounding two.

U.S. officials suspended the civilian-piloted airlift because of the intense insurgent fire after the first cargo planes of the day managed to land with supplies of food, fuel and ammunition at dawn.

American officials said the security situation at the airport was being carefully studied to determine whether the airlift could be resumed.

U.S. airlift planes flew a total of 37 flights into Pochentong Thursday, bringing rice from South Vietnam and fuel and ammunition from Thailand.

Government troops reported gains against the rebels in fierce fighting for control of the "rocket belt" region west of the airport.

The guerrillas have used the strategic swampland, which changed hands three times during the past month, to shell the battered airport.

Government commanders ordered air and artillery strikes against insurgent targets in the region Thursday and reported silencing one of two rebel howitzers shelling the airport.

U.S. sources said the performance of government troops trying to clear the "rocket belt" would be a critical factor in determining whether the airlift remains in operation.

DAILY FREEMAN ADS BRING RESULTS

Tax + Benefits = cUStodial savings

Saving for a child or grandchild? The best plan is a cUStodial Savings Account, which offers substantial tax benefits. You retain complete control of the account while earnings are only taxable to the child. Come to US for full details.

If you select a savings certificate cUStodial plan, there are substantial penalties for early withdrawal.
